WATER VALLEY, Miss., May 5.—(UP)—W. V. Wagner, president of the Bank of Water Valley, and his wife were found murdered near their home here today, their bodies hacked to pieces with an axe.

Wagner's body was found buried in a shallow grave about 75 yards from the house and his wife's body in another shallow grave some 200 yards away.

Officers discovered the bodies after following a bloody trail from the house. Signs of a terrific struggle were seen in the house and officers believe the couple was attacked by a fiend, who after killing them with an axe, dragged their bodies away and hastily buried them.

The double slaying was discovered by a negro cook when he went to the house to begin his morning's work.

The cook noticed blood around the yard of the house and on the doorsteps. Failing to arouse anyone in the house, he became

Reduced Rates On Gas Authorized By State Commission

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—(UP)—A saving of $50,000 annually through a schedule of reduced rates for the Southern Counties Gas company was anticipated today by large consumers throughout Southern California.

The state railroad commission approved the new schedule late yesterday, acting on a petition from the gas company filed to meet fuel oil competition.

While the rates chiefly affect the harbor district and the Santa Monica bay region, plants in part of Orange county, in Upland, Ontario and Pomona will also benefit, it was stated.

J. C. LANSDOWNE TO OPEN STORE IN SANTA ANA

WILL ROGERS
says:

BEVERLY HILLS, May 5.—[To the Editor of The Register:] Well, we got a dose of our own medicine this morning in the paper. We're always running off investigating some other country and coming back reporting the shape it's in. Well, some European woman (I think she was French) has been looking us over and reported our condition to the League of Nations. Course what she says don't listen so good to us, but the old gal is about right at that. Our so-called prosperous times taught us bad habits and this depression has left us using cheap substitutes for expensive bad habits.

TWO PORTLAND NEWSPAPERS MERGED TODAY

Telegram and News Hereafter Will Be Known as News-Telegram

PORTLAND, Ore., May 5.—(UP)—Purchase of the Portland Telegram and its merger with the News-Telegram, was announced here today by E. W. Scripps, treasurer of the Scripps-Candfield newspapers, and Ralph Benjamin, editor in chief of the northwest members of that group.

The purchase included all capital stock of the Telegram, which was owned principally by Herbert Fleischacker and Carl H. Brockhagen. The consideration was not announced.

The News-Telegram, which will be published at the present plant of the Portland News, will make its initial appearance as soon as physical difficulties can be overcome within two or three days at the outside.

"Merging of the Portland News and Portland Telegram does not mean the death of either," said a statement issued by the News, "rather it means that the best elements of both will be combined in a more perfect newspaper."

The merger has been under negotiation for several weeks and after a number of stalemates were encountered was concluded late Monday.

Garrison To Be Accused Of Murder

Admirer of Slain San Diego
Girl Will Be Held By Police Officers

SAN DIEGO, May 5.—(UP)—Moss E. Garrison, middle aged admirer of Hazel Bradshaw, beautiful 22-year-old telephone girl, will be charged with her murder although all evidence against him is circumstantial, Chief of Detectives Paul Hayes announced today.

Grilled for hours and calm except for a few minutes yesterday when he viewed the body of the slain girl in a San Diego morgue, Garrison has successfully withstood all police efforts to trap him.

Garrison's latest success came almost at the time that Captain Hayes announced it had been decided to place a murder charge against him.

A night watchman in Balboa Park, site of the Adobe Indian village where the girl's body, stabbed 10 times was found Sunday, substantiated an important part of Garrison's story to police.

The night watchman said that he saw Garrison and Hazel pass through the center of the park in the direction of the home at 11:25 p. m. Saturday.

TEACHER KILLED IN VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE KIDDIES

GENESEO, Ill., May 5.—(UP)—School children upon whose memories was stamped forever the picture of their teacher and two playmates being trapped on a trestle and ground to death by a passenger train were called today to tell a coroner's jury what they had seen.

The teacher, Miss Helen Scott, was celebrating her 26th birthday yesterday when she failed in an heroic attempt to throw three children from the trestle as the shrieking train bore down upon them.

She succeeded in saving one child, Edith Peterson, 8, but there was not time to reach two others, who stood as if hypnotized, waiting, horrified, in the path of the train.

Besides Miss Scott, those killed were Beulah Peterson, 7, and June Mason, 8. Lester Peterson, 11, brother of Beulah and Edith, was one of the witnesses. He was under the trestle, calling frantically for the trapped ones to jump, when the tragedy occurred.

Miss Scott and the children had planned a weiner roast for last evening. They left in the afternoon to gather willow sticks along the railroad tracks to use in roasting weiners.

The three children were on the trestle when the train appeared. Miss Scott rushed to rescue them. She threw Edith Peterson to safety as the train roared toward them, its whistle shrieking constantly as the engineer set every brake. Edith suffered minor injuries. The teacher could not reach the other two in time and died with them.

NEW YORK, May 5.—(UP)—An editorial on Sen. George W. Norris, the insurgent Nebraskan, brought to a middlewestern newspaperman, Charles S. Rickman, of the Fremont, Neb., Tribune, today, the Pulitzer prize, one of journalism's greatest awards.

Rickman was chosen from the thousands of editorial writers in large metropolitan cities throughout the country as the recipient of the $500 award for his editorial entitled "The Gentleman from Nebraska." The article was judged for "clearness of style, moral purpose, sound reasoning and power to influence public opinion in what the writer conceives to be the right direction."

Nebraska derives a great deal of pleasure out of shoving George Norris down the George Norris road. He is the eastern savior, the vaudeville villain, the caricature of a politician.

EXPECTS TO BE OPEN BY JULY FIRST

T. H. HAWKINS CONCERN
Plans One of Most Modern
Stores on Coast

IN AN OFFICIAL announcement made today by Jack Lansdowne, prominent Santa Ana business man, and until recently head of the J. C. Penney company store here, on or about July 1, the T. H. Hawkins store, of Los Angeles, will open in Santa Ana one of the most modern department stores anywhere in the West Coast.

Plans for the renovations of the building at 301-305 East Fourth street, part of the Hervey estate (line of stores have been completed and workmen are to start immediately placing the buildings in first class condition, with new, beautiful fronts and store rooms.

At the same time it was announced that as the leases expire in this block, entire new fronts are to be made, at a cost of some $60,000.

The building to be occupied by the T. H. Hawkins company is 50x140 feet, giving the new concern ample room and indicating that it is to be one of the biggest stores of its kind in the city.

Lansdowne at Head

Lansdowne announced today that he would be at the head of the new business, as resident manager, and that the business party would be his. "I will be one of the owners of this business and as such will be in a position in the community to fully share with other local merchants and business men the responsibilities that are a part of every community and which I consider the duties of the head of every business worthy of the support of the people of the community," he stated.

"We are establishing our business at Fourth and Spurgeon streets because we are determined to keep the cost down as we are doing in all our other operations, believing that in so doing we are indeed serving the public more efficiently and economically than some merchants in the city who will be paying 10 times as much rent as we will," he said.

"The successful merchant of today must make his profit out of low cost rather than high markup," Lansdowne said. "The high markup is merely penalizing the people who patronize him."

The T. H. Hawkins company is strictly a California company handling dry goods, shoes, men's furnishings and ready to wear, and maintain its own wholesale house in Los Angeles. There are now 10 stores in operation.

"We do not boast of hundreds of stores scattered throughout America, hence our great buying power, but rather that we buy for cash as cheap as any other store and are operating at a much lower cost than larger organizations are able to do, therefore we can sell at a reasonable profit as low as any and lower than most can offer the people of this community," said Lansdowne.

Personal Attention

"I personally expect to be on the floor at all times to personally serve the public and I am anxious to get back into Santa Ana business. I have always considered Santa Ana as the ideal home city of the Southland and I am looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to re-newing my acquaintance."

The actress said she was delighted to be back in Hollywood. "It seems like I have been in a trance those two years," she said. "I am feeling better than ever in my life and ready for the new adventure."

RETURNS HERE

Jack C. Lansdowne formerly manager of the J. C. Penney store in Santa Ana, who will open a new department store in this city on or about the first of July.

COLLAPSE: SENT TO SANITARIUM

Film Star Stricken While on Set in Studio and Condition Serious

HOLLYWOOD, May 5.—(UP)—Clara Bow, film star, was placed in a sanitarium after a nervous collapse on a set at her studio and her condition is regarded as serious, it was announced by Paramount-Public and her physicians today.

Miss Bow was rehearsing her current picture with other members of the cast last Sunday night when she suffered a breakdown. It was said. When it became apparent that she was in a serious nervous state she was taken to the Glendale sanitarium.

Two physicians, Dr. Wesley Hommel and Dr. Victor Parkins, consultant, were in attendance. They joined today in the following statement:

"A complete rest is imperative. Miss Bow is suffering from shattered nerves. It would be dangerous for her to make a picture at this time. The trouble can be overcome by a complete rest."

E. P. Schulberg in charge of west coast production for the studio, announced that work on Miss Bow's picture, an adaptation of David Belasco's "The Woman" was suspended indefinitely.

During the last year Miss Bow has featured in a number of situation which severely taxed her nerves.

For several months she was in the limelight in an alleged $30,000 settlement to the wife of a young Texas physician, Dr. Earl Pearson, who she met in Hollywood.

This incident was followed by the Cal-Neva gambling adventure in which the star asserted lost $15,000 and stumped payment on the check on the ground that she had been told $100 chips she played with were worth only 50 cents each.

MRS. BRYANT FAVORS NEW FLOOD PLAN

Letter to Supervisors Says
Construction Would Help
Reduce Unemployment

COSTS ARE LOW NOW

Points Out Construction of Dam Would Hasten Relief
From Flood Menace

IMMEDIATE adoption of the new flood control report and construction of the work called for therein was urged in a letter to the board of supervisors yesterday by Mrs. Susanna Bixby Bryant, it was learned today.

Suggestion that a special bond election to provide funds for the work, be called at the earliest possible legal date and that a united effort be made—backed solidly by the board of supervisors—to adopt the plan of the board of engineers, also was contained in the letter.

It was pointed out that the report was the result of an exhaustive study over a period of three years and involved the expenditure of some $200,000 to date in gathering the data on which the report was made and that every day of inaction now increases the hazard of flood destruction by deferring protection of large areas in the county subject to flood damage.

In urging that the recommendations of the engineers be carried out at once, Mrs. Bryant, owner of the Bryant ranch in the Santa Ana canyon, and one of the large land holders in the county, declared that there were several important economic reasons for acting at once. These include relation to the unemployment problem; low prices on materials and contracts, which offer opportunities for savings to taxpayers; and relief from flood menace in the shortest possible time.

The factor of savings through immediate construction was also mentioned in the report of the board of engineers, which was submitted to the supervisors Tuesday. On page 45 of the report the engineers say: "At the present moment prices are low due to general economic conditions

ASSEMBLY GIVEN NEW PRISON BILL

SACRAMENTO, May 5.—(UP)—A verdict of guilty of murder would require a mandatory recommendation by the jury of one of three sentences—hanging, life imprisonment without parole and life imprisonment with parole—under the provisions of a bill reported to the assembly today by the judiciary committee.

The bill is a substitute for the amended anti-capital punishment bill by William B. Hornblower, San Francisco, so changed on the floor of the assembly that it was killed in its original purpose to abolish hanging and was introduced by C. Ray Robinson, of Merced.

PARDON EXPECTED FOR ALBERT B. FALL

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(UP)—Albert B. Fall may have a good chance of obtaining pardon on the charge of bribery for which he stands convicted, it is believed in some circles here, due to his age and failing health.

While his pardon appeal will be based upon finally by President Hoover, it will be a member of the supreme court who probably will actually make the decision. That justice is Owen J. Roberts, who as special government counsel, prosecuted Fall. Pardon applications usually are referred to the judges and prosecutors. Friends of Roberts said last night that he had conducted the government's case throughout without malice, and believed his calm, judicious spirit influenced him in favor of a pardon for the former cabinet member.

Paul, Pals Play Polo; Pay Police

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 5.—(UP)—Playing polo in the city street with a giant draft horse as his mount drew a fine of $1 and costs for Ted Barbee, of Butler, alias Paul Revere.

Barbee's opponents in the unusual match rode tricycles. When his horse mounted the sidewalk, officers arrested him. He gave the name of Paul Revere.

Barbee pleaded guilty in police court. It developed that the game was a part of an initiation ceremony into Seaboard and Blade, a military organization of the University of Missouri.

MRS. BRYANT FAVORS NEW FLOOD PLAN

and the construction work outlined in this report could probably be accomplished for a smaller expenditure now than will be possible in a year or two.

The engineers also warned against flood danger in the county, declaring that most people did not realize the seriousness of the menace with which they were confronted.

The letter urging immediate action and pledging co-operation and support follows:

"Mr. C. John Mitchell, chairman, and members of the Orange county board of supervisors, Santa Ana, California.

"Gentlemen:—In answer to many requests I take occasion in this letter to express our attitude toward the flood control plan presented by Mr. Elliott for his board of engineers at the meeting of the board of supervisors held April 28, 1931.

"We all agree about the urgent necessity for adopting a proper plan for the 'Control and Conservation of Flood Waters in Orange County, California,' and the report of Messrs. Elliott, Etcheverry and Means embodies the final results of exhaustive studies which have been carried on over a period of more than three years by the Orange County Flood control district. The officers of the district have expended nearly $200,000 to date in gathering the data on which this report is founded and every day of inaction now only increases the hazard of flood destruction by deferring protection of large areas in the Santa Ana river basin and other parts of the county which have been developed since the flood of 1916.

"There are several important economic reasons for carrying out the recommendation of the board of engineers at this particular time. A serious problem of unemployment exists in Orange county which could be largely solved by giving steady jobs to hundreds of men building the dams. Also prevailing low prices on materials required for construction offer an opportunity to save many thousands of dollars to the taxpayers. Lastly, the time factor is of utmost importance and the plan before you offers relief from the flood menace within the shortest time possible.

"We therefore suggest that a special bond election be called at the earliest legal date and a united effort made, backed solidly by the Board of Supervisors, to adopt the plan of the board of engineers—and we pledge our co-operation and support to this program.

Respectfully,

(Signed)

"Mrs. Susanna Bixby Bryant."

Calvin Coolidge Says

BY CALVIN COOLIDGE

NORTHAMPTON, May 5.—The American Jewish joint distribution committee is starting an effort to raise two and one-half million dollars for the relief of their race in Central and Eastern Europe. The need for rehabilitation in that area is great and the organization for collecting and disbursing money is effective and complete. Our benefactions for foreign countries are very large. Scores of millions have gone to near east relief and hundreds of millions to other agencies. But the work is not yet done and should continue.

This is only an example of the constant and enormous charities of our country. In 1929 the amount of contributions is estimated at about two and one-half billions which is more than one half the cost of the national government, and about three percent of the national income. As an example of the generosity of a whole people there was never anything to compare with it in magnitude. Instead of putting all the emphasis on the great amount of wealth our country has accumulated, some thought should be given to the amount it is continually giving away. These are our permanent investments on which the returns are most satisfactory.

Real, old fashioned reporting won the prize for A. B. MacDonald of the Kansas City Star, who covered a murder story in Amarillo, Texas. Mrs. A. D. Payne was killed and her son critically injured in a bomb explosion which wrecked their automobile. Payne, an attorney, hinted at "anemias" he had made during his law practice.

MacDonald learned of a woman who admitted her friendship with Payne 24 hours after he had been assigned to the story. Payne was jailed and admitted planting the bomb which killed his wife. Then he killed himself in his cell with another bomb of his own construction.

A $500 gold medal was awarded the Atlanta Constitution, one of the most famous papers of the South, for the exposure of a ring of racketeers who were draining the city's coffers. Partly as a result of editorials and news stories under the direction of its editor, Clark Howell, a grandson of Ewan P. Howell, pioneer in the old school of journalism, the state sent 11 persons to jail, secured 10 guilty pleas and 53 indictments. Nineteen of the alleged grafters are still to go on trial and only seven had been acquitted.

Robert Frost has won the Pulitzer prize for the second time. His "collected poems" by Robert Frost, were chosen for the 1930 award. In 1924 his "New Hampshire" took the prize.

WIMBLEDON HOPES MRS. MOODY ENTERS

LONDON, May 5.—(UP)—Belief was expressed here today by English tennis officials that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody would return to Wimbledon this summer to defend her singles title.

In a letter received yesterday by Major D. R. Lacombe, secretary of the All-England Tennis club, Mrs. Moody said she hoped to defend her title. This was taken by officials as an indication that the United States net queen had reconsidered her previous decision not to compete.

Parents File Suit Over Son's Death

The death of their four year old son, Rudy, from injuries suffered when he was struck by a laundry truck on Oak street in Anaheim last March, was the basis of a $20,000 damage suit which was filed in superior court today by Joseph and Ida Carriosa against the Southern Service company, of Pomona. George N. Raines, driver of the truck is also named as a defendant.

The parents allege that the careless operation of the truck caused the accident.

Mr. Lansdowne is the man responsible for the opening of the J. C. Penney company store in Santa Ana in 1924, and building it to the present prominent position which it now occupies in the community. He has always been prominent in social and civic activities in the city.

T. H. Hawkins, founder of the company stated today that he had long been interested in Santa Ana and the idea of localizing each of his stores by putting into actual practice the golden rule plan, by making each manager an actual one-third owner in the store he is managing.

"Mr. Lansdowne has inspired me to make Santa Ana and him the beginning of this unique plan and I know that he will, by this policy, again be able to establish himself in Santa Ana as a local merchant in the true sense of the word and that he will give Santa Ana the distinction of being the home store of this unique plan that will in time bring Santa Ana the publicity that true success always brings to a community," Mr. Hawkins said.

Mr. Lansdowne has moved back to Santa Ana and will make his home here with his family. He is residing at 1142 South Birch street.

VIOLINIST IS APPLAUDED AT B. & P. W. CLUB

Music week was recognized by Business and Professional Women's club members yesterday at their luncheon meeting in Ketter's cafe with a brief program presented by two guest artists, George Evans, violin, and Miss Adelaide Proctor, piano.

The artists were introduced by Mrs. Anita L. Alexander of the May ad hoc committee, and responded with two announced numbers, "Melodie" by Tchaikowsky, and "Serenade" by D'Ambrasio. It was the first opportunity given many of the clubwomen to hear George Evans, who is the new member of the Santa Ana trio, having taken the place of Miss Georgia Belle Walton who left recently for Honolulu. Miss Ruth Armstrong and Edward H. Burns complete the trio.

His technique and musicianship were equally pronounced, and in response to the enthusiasm aroused by his playing, he gave an encore number, the typically Mexican and musical "Bonita." Miss Proctor's accompaniment completed the charm of the short program. She is an active member of the Orange Business and Professional Women's club.

Chief in importance among business affairs of the day was the nomination of officers to serve the club in 1931-32. The selection of names was made unanimously, with the following ticket to be voted upon at the final meeting in May: Miss Alma Sweet, president; Miss Lulu Ott, first vice president; Mrs. Thomas Douglas, second vice president; Miss Dorothy Decker, secretary; Miss Harriet Whidden, treasurer; Miss Lola Wilkinson, sergeant-at-arms; Miss Hester Covington and Mrs. Loyal K. King, directors.

Mrs. Marshall Northcross, retiring president, was honored by having the club unanimously endorse her name as a candidate for the office of vice president at large in the southern district federation.

Among announcements made was that of the Wyandale Maedden party on Tuesday night, May 12 in the Y. W. rooms, and of the district meeting of the B. and P. W. clubs to be held in San Pedro Saturday, May 9. It was announced also that Santa Ana club had been asked to have one feature in the "Then and Now" entertainment of the southern district convention dinner in Pomona next month, with "Salome" and a modern chorus girl as subjects for the number. Miss Doris Robbins has consented to assist in this feature.

Plead Not Guilty On Battery Count

W. R. Traxel and Charles J. Baker, Santa Ana, each pleaded not guilty to battery charges in Judge J. W. Mitchell's police court today and their trials set for next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The men were arrested by Santa Ana police officers after a complaint had been signed by John Heckman, of 208 North Garnsey street, who alleged that the two beat him with their fists.

DIVORCES ARE GRANTED ONCE IN 6 MINUTES

It was noted that 95 persons left town although only 83 divorces had been granted. The "extras" were relatives and prospective husbands of the new divorcees.

The hurried railroad reservations were just as much a part of Reno's divorce ritual as kissing the courthouse pillar after securing a decree—and this despite the fact that every plaintiff swore, before receiving a divorce, that her permanent home was Reno and that she intended to reside here in the future.

Many others boarded the east-bound transcontinental trains this morning after all night parties, not having been to sleep at all since their visit to court. The station was littered with rice, confetti and paper streamers. Laughter and tears were in evidence.

Gladdening the hearts of Reno's really permanent residents was the sight of the incoming train arriving shortly afterward with scores of new divorce seekers, lured here by the publicity attendant upon the passage of the new divorce laws.

Bystanders sympathetically remarked: "The tied comes in and the untied goes out."

REQUEST LIGHTS ON FOUR STREETS

A petition calling for the installation of light standards on four Santa Ana streets was filed with the city council last night, but no definite action was taken.

The petition calls for standards on Second street from Main to Ross streets; Birch street from Second to Fifth streets, Third street from Broadway to Ross streets and Ross street from Second to Fifth street.

The petition was signed by some 55 per cent of the property owners in the district and had been checked by the city engineer's office. It was announced. The petition calls for King standards.

The front footage represented by the signs is 235 feet out of the appraised 5375 feet in the district, the petition stated.

CITY COUNCIL PLANS TO AID UNEMPLOYED

A plan whereby the city of Santa Ana is to aid the unemployed by offering financial assistance, was worked out at the meeting of the council last night, at which time it was announced that approximately $200 per month would be given by the city towards the maintenance of the free unemployment bureau, but in order to make the donation legal, the employees of the bureau would have to be city employees.

On this stand, the council appointed R. R. Miller and Mrs. McMillan, his assistant, as members of the Santa Ana police department, and placed the bureau under the police department, it having been announced that this plan would be acceptable both to commissioner E. G. Warner and to Chief of Police Floyd W. Howard.

The two new members of the police department will be sworn in today and assume their duties immediately. The council appropriated $140 per month to Miller and $60 per month to Mrs. McMillan.

Councilman Witmer opposed the move on the ground that the taxpayers' money should not be spent without knowing where it was going, and on the ground that a Miller was employed by another city and could not give all his time to the work. Other members of the council voted for the plan.

Court Notes

Final judgment of divorce has been signed by Judge James L. Allen in connection with the divorce suit brought against Webster M. Wright by Esther L. Wright. The final judgment was signed at the request of Attorney Z. B. West, legal counsel for the defendant. The decree was awarded to the plaintiff.

Petition for letters of administration in the estate of Clyde A. Plavan was filed with County Clerk J. M. Backs yesterday afternoon by Violet A. Plavan, widow. The value of the estate is fixed at not to exceed $25,000 in the petition. Heirs at law are the widow and two daughters.

In connection with the petition of State Controller Ray L. Riley directed against Sarah M. Douglas, et al, an order fixing inheritance tax has been filed with County Clerk J. M. MRS. ROUNTREE IS CALLED BY DEATH MONDAY

Mrs. Wilfrid Rountree, 72, who came to Costa Mesa in 1914, passed away at her present home at 403 South Broadway, Santa Ana, yesterday, after an illness of but three days' duration. She suffered a stroke of paralysis last Friday and did not regain consciousness.

She was born in North Carolina in 1858 and while a child took the long journey to Kansas in a covered wagon with her widowed mother and her brothers and sisters. She grew up in the Quaker community of Hesper and attended Kansas State university.

Her interest in religious and welfare work led her into helping the Indians, and she taught in the Shawnee, Sac and Fox schools in the Indian territory for some years, and was one of the first teachers in Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kan.

In 1903 she was married to Wilfrid Rountree and with him spent five years in the Friends mission, Ramallah, Palestine. During the past 17 years she has been active in church work in Costa Mesa.

She is survived by her husband; a brother, Samuel H. Davis, of Kansas, and a sister, Mrs. Edmund Stanley, also of Kansas.

Services will be held at the graveside in Mountain View cemetery, Pasadena, at 11 a. m. Thursday. The cortege will leave the Winbiger Funeral home in Santa Ana Thursday at 9 a. m.

BODIES ARE LOCATED IN SAND GRAVE

alarmed and notified Sheriff Charles Doyle.

Doyle went to the house, forcing open the door. In the house he found a blood-covered axe. Further investigation disclosed a blood-soaked coat hanging in the barn.

Wagner's body had been buried in an orchard bordering the yard. Brush and sticks had been thrown over the grave.

In the garage officers noticed an automobile belonging to Mrs. Wagner was spattered with blood. A thin stream of blood led up the road in the opposite direction from when Wagner's body was found to another shallow grave where the woman's body was discovered.

It was thought the murderer put Mrs. Wagner's body into the automobile and carried it up the highway to the spot where it was buried.

Water Valley is 70 miles south of Memphis. The Wagner family is one of the wealthiest and most prominent in Northern Mississippi. Bloodhounds and a posse of citizens took up the hunt for the slayer.

Officers were unable to assign a robbery motive for the slaying, as nothing of value in the house had been disturbed. A watch and diamond ring were found on Wagner's body.

Sheriff Doyle said a Boy Scout, who was passing the house about 10:30 p. m. yesterday, told him he saw two men cranking an automobile in the yard. He was unable to describe the men.

The couple lived alone in the house. Their one son, William, 25, is in Central America.

WIMBLEDON HOPES MRS. MOODY ENTERS

LONDON, May 5.—(UP)—Belief was expressed here today by English tennis officials that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody would return to Wimbledon this summer to defend her singles title.

In a letter received yesterday by Major D. R. Lacombe, secretary of the All-England Tennis club, Mrs. Moody said she hoped to defend her title. This was taken by officials as an indication that the United States net queen had reconsidered her previous decision not to compete.

Parents File Suit Over Son's Death

The death of their four year old son, Rudy, from injuries suffered when he was struck by a laundry truck on Oak street in Anaheim last March, was the basis of a $20,000 damage suit which was filed in superior court today by Joseph and Ida Carriosa against the Southern Service company, of Pomona. George N. Raines, driver of the truck is also named as a defendant.

The parents allege that the careless operation of the truck caused the accident.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

Throughout the ups and downs of what has made history these nineteen hundred years the reality which abides and the personality which stands supreme today is Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever. He has never failed one who trusted in him, through sunshine and shadow, and He will not abandon you to weakness and grief and failure. Whether you have known Him through sunshine and shadow, and He will not abandon you to weakness and grief and failure. Whether you have known Him through sunshine and shadow, and He will not abandon you to weakness and grief and failure.

SAY PRICE 25 PER CENT OVER REJECTED BIDS

Asking the board of supervisors why the county was paying approximately 25 per cent more for tires than prices which had been submitted for standard makes on recent bids; why one brand of tire had been favored with the bulk of county business for the past three years; and why all bids recently received were rejected, a committee representing a group of independent tire dealers appeared today before the board of supervisors and entered protest at the way tire purchases were being handled.

H. C. Kier, of Anaheim, acted as spokesman for the delegation, reading a letter to the board which asserted that the independent tire dealers, who were county tax payers, asked that the board answer the questions, saying they believed they were entitled to an explanation. The letter also declared that the board is charged with handling the business of the county and that it was believed the board recognized the importance of economical administration and expenditures of money.

Chairman John Mitchell advised the delegation that he agreed that they were entitled to an explanation, and that he did not know such a condition of affairs existed. He was joined in this position by other members of the board, including Charles Chapman, who said no bids ever had been received by the board and that he had no knowledge of any bids having been made. Chairman Mitchell explained that the tire purchase was handled through Supervisor George Jeffrey, who is now in a hospital, but that he would make an investigation and have a report for the delegation next Tuesday. He also said that no bids had been received or opened by the board.

The questions asked by the tire dealers were as follows:
"1. Why did this board reject all bids received on tires for passenger cars owned by the county, which had been advertised and were opened before the board on April 20?"
"2. Why is the county now buying tires at prices approximately 25 per cent higher than those offered by certain bidding firms handling standard makes of tires?"
"3. Why has one certain brand—the same that is now being purchased at the advanced price—been getting the bulk of the county tire business for the past three years?"

Tire dealers whose names appeared on the letter were Orval Lyon, C. J. Skirvin, J. A. Dowling, Herbert L. Miller, Hugh Stinson, Paul R. Wimer and Jess Goodman, all of Santa Ana, and H. C. Kier and West Brothers, of Anaheim. Members of the delegation which appeared before the board were Kier, Lyon, Skirvin and Goodman, of Santa Ana, and C. M. Blaisdell, of Anaheim.

The death yesterday in her home in Los Angeles, of Mrs. Louisa B. Willard, 83, closed the happy plans of Mrs. Willard to come to Santa Ana to make her home with her son, H. E. Willard, owner of the Willard Dry Goods store, formerly Van Antwerp's, at Fourth and Sycamore streets.

Ever since her son purchased the store from the former owners, Mrs. Willard had anticipated coming to this city, and plans were almost completed for the home which mother and son had expected to occupy. Her death came suddenly after a very brief illness.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in Los Angeles, and the doors of the Willard store will close at 3 o'clock as a mark of respect and sympathy, remaining closed until the following morning, Thursday, May 7. Mr. Willard is in Los Angeles attending to duties in connection with the last sad rites.

PAIN IN YOUR SHOULDER?

Use Tysmol for Relief
Knife-like jabs of pain in the vicinity of the shoulder blade are generally due to neuritis, brought on by exposure to draughts or sudden changes of weather. In some cases there is stiffness or soreness in the muscles, making it difficult to raise the arm. The safest and easiest way to relieve such an attack is to apply a small quantity of Tysmol over the affected area. This soothing, healing preparation is quickly absorbed through the pores and carried to the throbbing aching peripheral nerves. The pains usually stop at once, and in a very short time the last trace of soreness should disappear. Tysmol is absolutely harmless—free from opium. Recommended for all forms of nerve pain, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, sciatica or rheumatism. Sold by leading druggists. Always on hand at C. S. Kelley Drug Co.—Adv.

WOMEN RULE ARKANSAS TOWN

Yes, it's true. In the little village of Mt. Ida, Ark., just west of Hot Springs National Park, the men are bossed by the women. It's what they wanted—they put the women's names on the ballot and helped elect them. In the front row, left to right, are Mrs. Harold Watkins, recorder; Mrs. Eva McLane, mayor, and Mrs. Ed Benson, alderman. Back row: Mrs. Morris Elder, left, Mrs. J. H. Freeman, Mrs. Jerry Witt and Mrs. H. C. Herndon, aldermen. The town of Yellville, Ark., also has a women's administration.

WITMER IS TO BE IN CHARGE OF INSPECTORS

Following a request from a committee from the Santa Ana Builders' Exchange that all building inspectors and heads of the electrical and plumbing departments of the city be placed under one head, the head to be a member of the city council, Santa Ana's city council last night designated this work to Councilman Paul Witmer, head of the fire department.

The request was made at the open but unofficial meeting of the council held yesterday afternoon, at which time F. W. Sanford represented the builders and made the request.

"There has been a lot of 'gyp' work going on in Santa Ana, I know," Mayor John Knox stated. "Most of it has been going on by outsiders and some that live here." He said, "I got a piece of property down here on the southside and the first time it rained, you should have seen the plastering. I got rid of it through another 'gyp' dealer, though," he stated.

Floyd Croddy also appeared before the council concerning the appointments and stated that he did not belong to the builders' association but that in his opinion the departments should be placed under one head.

Appointments of building inspector and such other appointments will be made next Monday night, it was intimated.

GIVE PROGRAM FOR JUVENILE HOME PUPILS

BY RUTH ANDREWS
While a program of American music was under way at the high school auditorium last night, another musical entertainment was taking place at the Juvenile detention home on east First street. Lorene Croddy presented eight boy students who made a good appearance in their neat uniforms and gave a program which was very greatly enjoyed by 19 boys and six girls detained in the home.

The program opened with "The Crow Song," sung by the ensemble of "Melody Boys." Other numbers were two readings, "Rashful Bill" and "Little Willie's Hearing" by Hugh Plumb and "Discord in Museland" by Bob Pankey. These numbers were quite humorous and the young people were very appreciative and liberal with their applause. A closing vocal number was sung by the boys. Miss Croddy acted as accompanist for the group.

D. C. Cianfoni, local director of our famous municipal band, gave two trombone solos. He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Allen Lair. After the program was over, Professor Cianfoni gave a little talk on the band instrument explaining to the young folks the benefit derived by a boy who plays a musical instrument, also the pleasure the boy gets out of a musical instrument. The boys asked many questions regarding the music week celebration, and the municipal band, for which Cianfoni explained the value of the municipal band in a community, also the work that is being done throughout the country during the Music Week.

Council Notes

Joe Murrillo, city police officer, last night, was appointed city interpreter at $10 per month in addition to his regular salary. He takes the place of Sid Smithwick, who was dropped from the force last week.

The resignation of J. B. Castlex, as a member of the Santa Ana police force, was accepted by the council last night, and in his place (Capt.) A. F. Moulton was named on the department. Castlex, appointed a week ago, decided not to take the position, Chief of Police F. W. Howard, announced.

The city clerk last night was instructed to make a formal demand on the county board of supervisors for the sum of $40,000, alleged due the city on penalties on taxes which the city claims have been accumulating for the past several years.

MAYOR LEAVES HIS CHAIR TO SECOND MOTION

Mayor John Knox believes in going after what he wants and last night he stepped down from the mayor's chair at the city council meeting in order to put over an advertising purchase for the California Real Estate magazine.

The magazine representative had asked the city for an advertisement to cost $55. After a talk in favor of the expenditure, Mayor Knox called for a motion and it was made by Councilman Warner. Then he called for a second, but none was forthcoming, so Knox seconded it himself. He was informed that, as mayor, he couldn't do it.

So the mayor got out of his chair and asked Councilman Hasenjaeger to take over the mayor's reins for a minute. Knox went to Hasenjaeger's seat and seconded the motion. A vote was then called for, and Knox and Warner voted for the expenditure and Witmer and McBride against it. That "passed the buck" to Hasenjaeger.

Immediately afterward, a representative of a concern printing the Masonic bulletin of Orange county appeared and asked for a similar advertisement and the council voted for it unanimously.

INSURANCE OF CITY ASKED BY ASSOCIATION

A plan whereby all the city's insurance, including some $250,000 worth of fire insurance, would be turned over to the Santa Ana Association of Insurance Agents, and distributed among them, was shown by the city council at its afternoon meeting yesterday, but when the matter came before the board officially last night, action was postponed for two weeks, on motion of Councilman Paul Wit-

mer. The plan was brought before the council by a committee of insurance men, composed of W. B. Martin and R. G. Cartwright, both of whom made talks. Martin stated that it would take insurance out of politics and would keep any agent from getting all the business. He stated that at this time he was not an agent for any of the city's business.

Following a discussion started by the council, it developed that there were some 80 persons in Santa Ana writing fire and casualty insurance and there were some 31 agents in the city who had offices and made their money solely in this way. At the same time, Martin stated there were only 13 members of the association asking for the insurance. City Auditor Banks stated that there had been no politics played with the insurance in the past four years and that there were 31 agents here handling the city business at this time. Martin told the board that the insurance would be distributed fairly among the members of the association and that any agent who joined the association would be entitled to his share of the city's business under the plan. His plan is to appoint a board, within the association, to figure the insurance and to place it with the other members of the organization.

Child Could Not Sleep Eczema Itched so Badly. Cuticura Healed.

"When my grandchild was six months old eczema broke out in a small eruption on the side of her face. The eruption gradually grew until it was the size of a silver dollar. The irritation was unbearable, and I had to watch her all the time to keep her from scratching. At times she could not sleep because it itched so badly. The trouble lasted about three months.

"A friend advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased some and relief was obtained almost immediately, and after using three cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. O. Potvin, 4760 Grand River Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25c and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

RESOLUTION TO OPPOSE CRAIG BILL PLANNED

Following in the footsteps of the former city council, Santa Ana's new body last night instructed its city attorney, Clyde Downing, to draw a resolution showing the city's opposition to Assembly bill No. 1861, known as the Craig bill or the Orange County Water Saving bill.

Telegrams are to be sent to Assemblyman Craig and to Senator Edwards, indicating the city's opposition to the bill as it now stands. City Attorney Downing stated that his chief objection to the bill so far as the city is concerned, is that it conflicts with the Metropolitan Water project, which Santa Ana has joined. "It takes in Santa Ana as a city and if passed would affect the district outside of Santa Ana which in due time probably will become a part of Santa Ana," he said. In other words, persons who live just outside the city would be apt to pay taxes on both the state bill and the Metropolitan water plan, should their property ever be taken into Santa Ana's city limits.

"Santa Ana should be opposed to the bill because it would limit the further growth of the city," Downing said. J. L. McBride, water commissioner, stated that he was also opposed to the bill because under the act the district can be taxed to treat sewer water, which Santa Ana would have to pay and from which the city would receive no benefit. This was the same objection that McBride had when the former city council opposed the proposed bill.

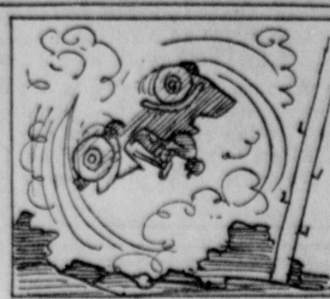

Oppose Another Bill
Another proposed state bill came in for its share of criticism at the meeting of the council last night. It is assembly bill No. 8. The council voted to request the city attorney to send its protests against the bill to the assemblyman and senator on the grounds that the bill calls for the establishment at this time of the amount of water wanted by Santa Ana and that the allocation taken at this time would act as a precedent for the future.

PAGEANT OF AMERICAN MUSIC PRESENTED BY 300 STUDENTS IN HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

By RUTH ANDREWS

Reflecting the progressive trend evident in musical education throughout the nation's schools during recent months, a colorful "Pageant of American Music" was presented in Santa Ana High School Auditorium last evening by approximately 300 pupils drawn from various musical organizations of local schools, as a special event of the National Music Week festival now being celebrated here throughout the current week.

Despite the fact that a capacity audience of school children had witnessed a similar matinee performance yesterday afternoon, the auditorium was again crowded with enthusiastic parents and friends. The picturesque, well-varied pageant had been arranged by Frances Hunt Beeson, assisted by the various musical instructors of the local Junior and Senior High schools as well as the Santa Ana Junior college, and it proved to be one of the finest presentations yet to be made by the music departments of local schools, reflecting great credit on both teachers and pupils.

Composed of pleasingly varied songs and dances representing different phases of American life together with many ensemble numbers by large choral groups, the program was attractively presented. An especially novel feature was the tribal song and dance by native Indian lads from the Sherman Institute at Riverside. Following a period of community singing led by D. H. Tibbals with Alan Revill at the piano, combined Junior high school orchestras led by S. J. Mustol, opened the program with a stirring medley, woven from familiar themes of Steven Foster.

A mammoth chorus of about 200 pupils, including the various Junior high school groups, seated upon a graduated platform, formed an impressive living background of singers throughout the program as well as facilitating the presentation of special numbers. In native costume, Martin Napa, from the Sherman Institute scored an instant success in his presentation of the traditional Indian ceremonial, the "Sunrise Call," colored lighting adding its effective touch. Martin was given a real ovation, twice recalled, and sang as a final encore the familiar "Pale Moon." Presentation of a religious tribal dance, "Chant of the Eagle" by a group of appropriately costumed lads from the institute also struck a novel note and was warmly applauded.

Quaint contrast charmed in the "Minuet" songs representative of the Colonial period of our country's history, given by the Willard Girls Glee club, directed by Esther Jean Davis. Petite dancers from the Putnam School of Dancing were seen in a dainty pantomime, portraying the graceful rhythms of the same old-fashioned dance, the diminutive little trio of artists rendering the little sketch with real charm.

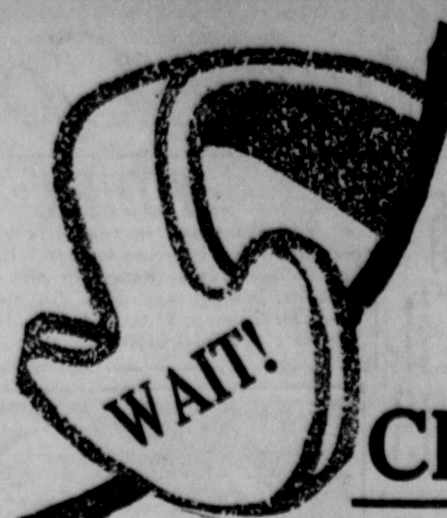

A group of cowboy songs, "Cowboy Song" (Anderson) and "When the Bloom is on the Sage" (Howard) sung by the Lathrop Boys' Glee club were well-adapted to youthful voices and spirits, being directed by Miss Edith Cornell. A trio in costume lent a realistic touch.

Songs representative of America's Negro music included a contrasting song group offered by Lynwood Mitchell, young colored tenor of this city, who sang David Gulon's "Raccoon in the 'Simmon Tree'" and the familiar "Goin' Home" (Dvorak). Mitchell, whose voice is said to be indicative of promise, evidenced excellent tone, and merited the warm applause accorded him. He has sung previously over KREG.

Typical Negro spirituals, "I Ain't Gwine Study War No More" and "O Mary Don't You Weep" were offered by the Willard Boys Glee Club, directed by Esther Jean Davis. A clever Negro tap dance, given by Miss Lorraine Turk in abbreviated spangled costume won for this vivid young dancer much well-merited

WILBUR TELLS VALUE OF OIL CONSERVATION

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur on April 23 issued a call for bids for the sale of royalty oil and royalty "wet gas" representing the supply accruing to the United States from government land in the north dome of the Kettleman Hills oil field.

For Constipation
Dr. PIERCE'S
Pleasant Pellets
AT ALL DRUG STORES

statement by the department of the interior in regard to the call for bids and the operation of the oil field follows, as printed in the United States Daily:

"The secretary of the interior is today (April 23) calling for bids for the government's share of the oil and wet gas that is produced from the north dome of the great Kettleman Hills oil field, in California, which, after much effort, the interior department recently brought under a model scheme of unit operation. This call for bids directs attention to this field and to the contribution to the chaos of the oil industry which it would have made had its development been allowed to proceed without regard to conservation principles.

"Owners and lessees in this field formed the Kettleman Hills North Dome association and since April 1 the properties have been operated under a unit plan, the returns being divided in proportion to the acreage holdings. Under this plan waste has been lessened and production held down so that only two wells are flowing, yielding only about 3300 barrels a day.

"Had the area been developed in the usual manner it is estimated 100 wells would have been producing by this time, with an average yield of 400,000 barrels. The total production of the state of California is around 500,000 barrels a day, but this Kettleman oil is three times as rich in gasoline as the average. With only a few wells it could have supplied gasoline for all of California, and 100 wells would have killed every other field, and spilled over harmfully into other markets.

"The government obtains a royalty on oil and gas produced from land which it owns. A year ago a call for bids for its share of the oil being produced in this field resulted in a sale of $257 a barrel.

"The same sort of oil is now priced for California fields at 35 cents a barrel. The government obviously, is profiting under its year-old contract. The purchaser has asked to be relieved but the secretary of the interior, under the contract, had no authority to let him off.

"The present production in which the government shares is around 3300 barrels a day and the government's royalty is about 290 barrels a day. If the new contract calls for 60 cents a barrel this oil would yield about $174 a day.

"The call for bids also covers the 'wet gas' that comes up with the oil. The wet gas promises to yield in gasoline.

Though the government may find that, on the present depressed oil market, it can get no more than 60 cents a barrel for this oil it will not be called upon to continue that price if it goes up. The bids must be made upon the basis of a premium above the prices obtained for oil produced by the Kettleman Hills North Dome association at any given time.

Ice Cream Cans Use In Kitchens Stirs Officials

Use of ice cream cans as kitchen utensils has drawn the fire of the State Department of Agriculture.

R. E. Duckworth, assistant administrative agent, said that proprietors of about 50 restaurants and drug stores have been summoned to appear in the southern offices of the Bureau of Dairy Control, of the department, to show cause why they should not be prosecuted for unlawful use of the cans.

"Ice cream cans, by reason of their peculiar style and weight, make ideal kitchen utensils and it is not infrequent to find as many as ten or fifteen such cans in one restaurant being used for everything from cooking to storing of beans, rice, coffee and the like," Duckworth said.

Under the law, it is the duty of the Department of Agriculture to make an investigation of any place where dairy containers may possibly be used to prosecute anyone unlawfully using them.

CHEAP CUTS OF MEAT IMPROVED BY USING SUGAR

Sugar Blends Deliciously with Meat Juices and Seasonings

One of the most inexpensive meat stews to make is the famous Mexican dish—Chili Con Carne. The recipe, which is very simple, follows:

Slice fine, two onions and cook slowly in four tablespoons of fat in a covered kettle until soft—not brown. Then add one and one-half pounds round steak or cheaper beef cut in small cubes and cook until the meat starts to fry. Stir in one to three tablespoons Chili powder, mixed in a little water, one teaspoon salt and two teaspoons sugar. Next add one quart hot water and one-half cup tomato puree or juice. Simmer until meat is very tender and the stew is of a thick consistency. Serve with potatoes, rice, corn or hominy and a salad. This meat topped with a sweet dessert is most satisfying and properly balanced.

Sugar can be similarly used when you stew, braise or pot-roast cheap cuts of beef or lamb; and a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt noticeably improves the flavor of vegetables. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

CONSECRATION IS URGED AT REVIVAL

The Rev. Pauline Todd, of Terre Haute, Ind., who started a series of evangelistic meetings at the First United Brethren church Sunday, spoke last night on the subject "The Consecrated Life."

"We need to consecrate our bodies to God, as living sacrifices—the ear to hear only the things that are helpful; the eye to see only the upward way; the tongue to speak only the things that would make other lives brighter and happier; hands to minister to the needs of those about us; feet to carry us to the house of God instead of to the house of pleasure. The whole life should be so abandoned to the Holy Ghost that we are happy only when we are busy in the work of winning souls to Christ."

The Rev. Miss Todd will speak at the church, 1101 West Third street, at 7:30 p. m. today and each evening this week. It was announced by the R. W. Harlow, pastor.

SCOUT CAMPING PROGRAM WILL SET NEW MARK

An extensive summer camping program for Orange County scouts has been arranged for this year, according to an announcement made today by Harrison E. White, scout executive. The recent changes and additions in the local scout program are expected to make this the biggest year in camping activities for scouts that has ever been held.

The program as planned includes a new and special week-end session for troop patrol leaders to be held in the middle of May at Camp ROKILL in the San Bernardino mountains. This will be a pre-camp "prep" session.

The regular summer camping program will be held at Camp ROKILL from July 13 to 19, and is intended for all cubs and any boys in the county between the ages of 9 and 12 who wish a taste of camp life. This will be held under the same supervision and policies as the regular scout camp and is open to any boy who wishes to go to the camp.

A "Rover Camp" is an innovation to be inaugurated by the council this year. This special event is open to first class scouts who are veterans of camping life at Camp ROKILL. Only 25 scouts are to be picked from those who qualify as the best scouts, taking the performances of the past year as a basis of judgment. The scouts will leave Santa Ana on July 20 and will take a 2000 mile trip through California, supervised by scout officials.

The "Royal Road to Romance" is the name chosen for this 2000 mile trip, which will last two weeks, White announced.

Scouts who will go on this trip will be privileged to travel up the sea coast, visit San Francisco bay, go inside the gray walls of San Quentin prison, see the gigantic redwoods of California, fish and swim in various rivers and streams, travel up the famous Redwood highway, see the largest redwood lumber mill in the world, visit the Humboldt dairies, view the lumber towns that are reminiscent of the old frontier days, visit a whaling station, see the Klamath river and the "China" salmon fishing, travel up the Klamath river to Eureka through wild Indian country and see pioneer mining camps, pass by Mt. Shasta, see the government fish hatcheries, the great Sacramento valley, the state capital at Sacramento, visit the University of California at Berkeley and to travel home by a different route.

Court Notes

Annulment of marriage of Nancy Gifford to Max M. Gifford is sought in a complaint which has been filed in superior court. The action was brought by Mrs. Minnie Saindon, mother of Mrs. Gifford, acting as legal guardian of her daughter, who it is claimed is under legal age. The marriage took place in Santa Ana on November 22, 1930, when the bride was under age and did not have her parent's consent, according to the complaint.

J. E. Davis, et al., has filed a suit asking a decree of quiet title to four lots in the Seventeenth street section of Huntington Beach. The complaint names 26 defendants in addition to a number of fictitious defendants.

Reversing judgment of Judge H. G. Ames for the plaintiff, a certified copy of an opinion from the California supreme court was received today by County Clerk J. M. Backs. It concerned a quiet title action brought by C. A. Malson against G. A. Puntener, et al., in which Judge Ames rendered judgment for the plaintiff and made him an award of $1500 for use and occupancy of the premises by the defendants. The supreme court opinion held that the plaintiff claimed title under an execution on a judgment, but that legal title was vested in one of the defendants to the suit for quiet title, who was not a party to the other action in which the plaintiff obtained judgment under which the execution was levied.

DON, DONA NAMED FOR FIESTA DAY

Maybelle Ball, former social commissioner at the Santa Ana junior college, and George Griffith, present social head, were victorious in the race for Don and Dona of the fourth annual Fiesta day to be held May 15, as a result of elections at the jaycee. "I am 39!" SAYS BILLIE BURKE

Famous stage Beauty declares no woman needs look her age

"I REALLY am 39 years old!" says Billie Burke. "And I don't see why any woman should look her age."

"We on the stage, of course, must keep our youthful freshness. Youth wins and holds the public as nothing else can."

"So one must be wise enough to keep this charm right through the years. To do this it is important above everything else to guard complexion beauty—keep one's skin temptingly fresh and smooth.

"For years I have used Lux Toilet Soap regularly. It leaves my skin amazingly clear and soft."

At 39 Billie Burke has just signed up for a series of motion pictures in Hollywood! She will find the actresses there, like the stage stars, are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. Actually 605 of the 613 important ones use this fragrant white soap to guard complexion beauty—regularly!

SAINTS TO PROTEST 'SUICIDE SCHEDULE' Stars At Huntington Beach Tonight

WEST WINDS

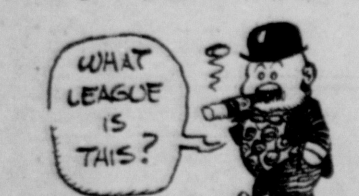

Here and There in Local Sport

By EDDIE WEST

In Santa Ana's mild remembrance of the "suicide schedule" prescribed for it in football next fall, methinks I detect the first faint rumbling of significant dissatisfaction.

A charter member of the Coast Preparatory league, friendly enemies of 30 years standing with at least two schools of the confederacy, Santa Ana has enjoyed its relations of the last eight years. Perhaps, that is why its feelings were fractured when the league went into a star-chamber session, rammed across a schedule that was not previously submitted to Santa Ana's representatives. Probably Santa Ana thought it should have received more consideration from its ancient associates, that at least it should have been invited to the meeting.

Probably the league will readily grant Santa Ana anything it wants, as it has in other years. But if there is no disposition to remedy the situation, I think I know enough to know there will be no successive games with Long Beach and San Diego for the Saints.

Santa Ana has always been sort of between the devil and the deep blue sea in its conference affiliations. It was too large for the Orange league. It is too small for the Coast Preparatory league. Santa Ana junior college is too small for the Western division of its conference, too.

Santa Ana officials have always felt it was better to be a little frog in a big pool than a big frog in a little pool. For eight years it has taken its periodic lickings from schools three times larger without whimpering, satisfied to humble the few institutions its own size. But it does not intend to become

North Long Beach snapped out of it and gave Olive a real argument in a National Night League game at Olive last night. Claude Anderson's tailenders got so troublesome that Manager Guy Meats finally had to send in his ace pitcher, Rudy Heman, to make sure of victory, 3 to 0.

Fred Guenther hurried the first seven innings for the Packers and didn't yield a run but passed seven and with only a two-run margin to work on at the time. Meats put in Heman at the beginning of the eighth. North Long Beach filled the bases on Heman with only one out but couldn't put over a run, and the curve-ball expert breezed through them in the ninth.

Olive got a run in the second when Shell doubled and Vance singled with one out. Home runs by First Baseman Sweet in the fourth and eighth accounted for the other two.

LATHROP IN RALLY TO BEAT FULLERTON

Scoring eight times in the last of the seventh, the final inning, the Julia C. Lathrop junior high school baseball team won a thrilling 12-1 game from Fullerton last night in the school's second game at Lathrop field yesterday. Walter Burke's home run with the bases full stimulated the Spartan rally.

MORNING, OLD S. A. JINX, TO OPPOSE CHAMPS

The Stars say good evening to Mr. Morning tonight.

Which means that George Lackey's Santa Anans will have to be at their best when they invade the breezy Huntington Beach orchard because Howard Morning has long been a thorn in the side of the Southern California night baseball champions, and he is pitching better now than at any time since his palmy days with Long Beach.

When the symmetrical south-paw was with the Acorns he could beat Santa Ana by the simple expedient of walking out to the pitcher's box. He did that so often, in fact, that he became known as the "Stars" hoodoo, and he remained until the latter part of the 1920 season when with a poor team in support he bogged down some and Santa Ana gave him two healthy beatings.

Morning in Comeback

The tip was out last year that Morning was all through as a Double-A night ball moundman, that his hard one didn't have a hop on it any more, but the veteran has come back to his old standards and seems to be throwing as well as ever. He hasn't lost a game this season. Westminster beat the Oilers last Friday but got its runs off Jack Collins who worked the first three heats. Morning pitched shutout ball, struck out ten in the last six.

Harry Beatty, now Huntington Beach manager, has a complete new lineup behind Morning. Bill Bushman, formerly with Anaheim, is Morning's battery-mate. Liebziet, Young, Elliott and Goshert make up the infield. Felock, Maness and Landreth the outfield. Elliott and the entire outfield was recruited from Long Beach. Maness was rated as one of the most dangerous hitters in the league last summer.

Lackey will start his usual Santa Ana lineup, with Joe Cornelius and "Easy" Wilcox as a battery. Ed Daley will be at first. Scott second, Leavitt Daley third and Hill short and Bell Nelson and Merrill in the outfield.

Lackey Assigns Pitchers
With three games coming up next week, Lackey has determined to use Earl Morrill against North Long Beach Friday, Ochoa against Fullerton Tuesday and Cornelius against Anaheim Thursday. At least that's his present plan.

Phil Schrott is no longer with the club. It is understood he has made a deal for himself to manage the Fullerton team which has already shown evidence of distress. If

JACOBS SCREAMS

Joe Jacobs, manager of the world's champion (by foul) Max Schmeling, bought some newspapers at the cigar stand in a hotel lobby in Cleveland the other day. He turned to the sports pages. Suddenly he screamed.

"What's this!" he yelled, his eyes looking as large as one of Herb Pennock's slow balls. "Sharkey to fight Camara in Brooklyn June 10? Why it's murder, yes murder."

"Why they can't put off anything like that! Camara's under contract with the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois to meet the winner of the Schmeling-Stirling championship bout, and he can't do this because he's violating his contract and that isn't right."

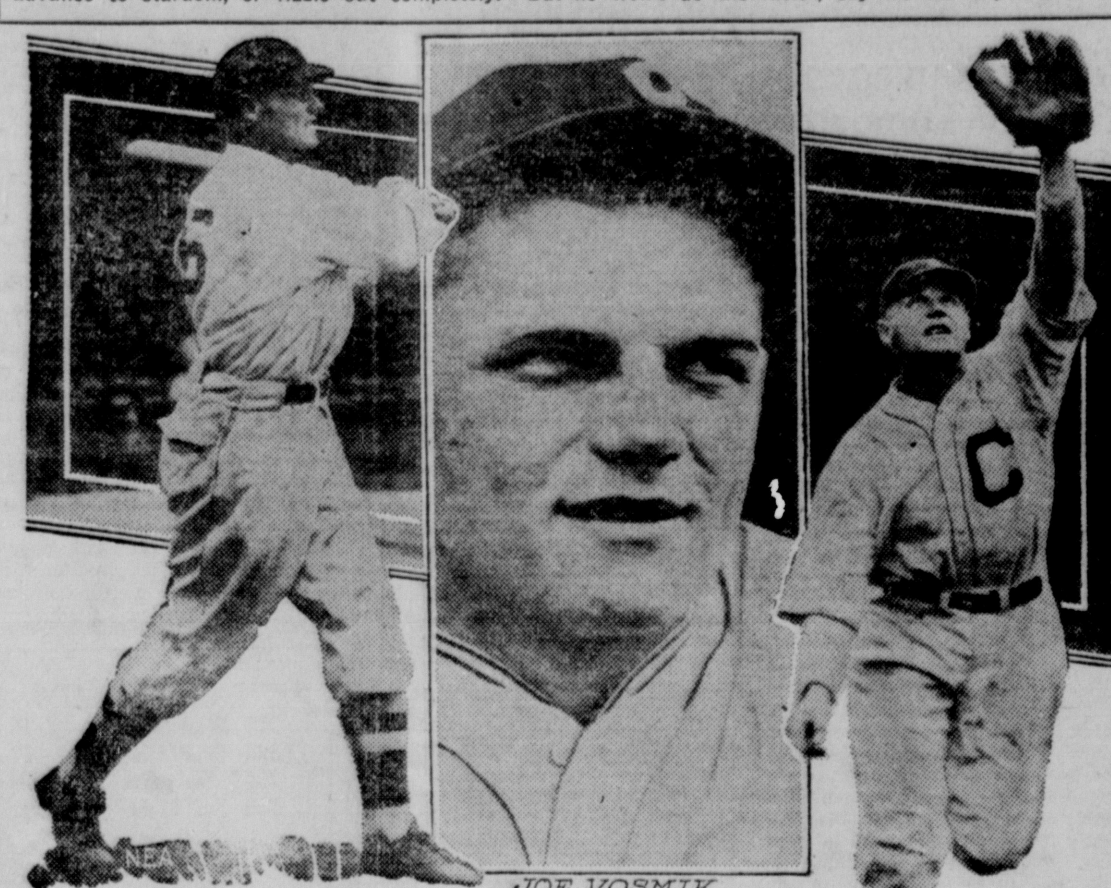

Ah, but my dear Joey you don't know these boxing people! You know the gulls they can spread. You don't know the tricks some of those boxers' managers will stoop to. I just tell you what, Joe, there are some pretty bold fellows connected with boxing nowadays, and they are likely to try to get away with almost anything.

"WE HAVE HEARD—"

You would be surprised, Joe, if we should tell you some of the things we have heard about the smart Alecks who manage boxers. Why, even in New York City, where boxing is under supervision of so august a body of men as Muldoon, Fahey and Phelan, do you know that once in a while, well maybe once in a very great long while somebody puts something across that is just a mite, just a mite, mind you, smelly? And contracts? Why, even a contract isn't sacred to some of

SANDLOT BOY CRASHES MAJORS WITH BIG BAT

Here is the Bohemian Boy Bomber of the Cleveland Indians, one Joseph Franklin Vosmik, a young slugger whose boisterous entry into the major league surpasses those of Cobb, Ruth, Simmons and Klein. Vosmik has used sandlot, Class C and Class B baseball as his stepping stones to the American league. The Clevelanders just turned 21 so there remains plenty of time for him to advance to stardom, or fizzle out completely. But he won't do the latter, say all the experts.

HELEN'S DESIRE TO PLAY IN REAL DRAMA ONLY OBSTACLE TO MOVIE CONTRACT, BELIEF

By THOMAS R. CURRAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, May 5.—(UP)—Motion picture producers pondered today the question of whether Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the "Little Poker Face" of sportdom could become a dramatic actress in filmdom; and thus hold her amateur standing in the former field of persons well known.

It was explained that, unlike Bobby Jones, Mrs. Moody does not want to make movie shorts illustrating game technique. Jones is now demonstrating golf strokes in one-reel talking pictures.

Mrs. Moody, however, wants to appear as a conventional actress in regular dramatic roles, although she is recognized as the country's greatest girl tennis player. She would thereby retain her amateur standing. It was pointed out, whereas if she made tennis shorts she would automatically be declared professional.

Two studios were reported willing to sign Mrs. Moody for one-reelers, similar to the Jones series, but they were not certain. It was said, that she could star in straight heroine parts. It was believed that this uncertainty, and the hope that she would ultimately agree to make tennis educational, had delayed negotiations with the tennis champion for over a week.

Sportmen here pointed out that if Mrs. Moody acceded to the demands of the studios and became a professional, it would enable promoters to attempt to rematch her with Suzanne Lenglen.

Mlle. Lenglen became a professional four years ago and toured this country with Mary K. Browne and Vincent Richards.

Will the kid prove a flash in the pan? Another crocus that blooms in the spring but withers under the storm of hot pitching in May, June and July? Such things have happened, but Joe has a few pretty fancy figures behind him to dispute any such catastrophe. Joe, man and boy (he's only 21 now) has led a couple of baseball leagues in batting in his day, and if confidence means anything, he'll lead this one, too.

A Woman's Intuition?
He came to the Indians by accident. Every year the Cleveland club gives two of the city's best sandlot players a chance to make the grade with the Indians. Eight sandlot players are nominated and from these two are chosen.

Joe, an outfielder for the Rotbart Jewellers, was lined up in the Indians' office two years ago, along with seven other sandlot players. General Manager Billy Evans picked his first man without hesitation, but was in doubt about the other candidate, after looking over the records. In this dilemma, Evans invited Mrs. Evans to choose between two of the young men. Mrs. Evans pointed out Vosmik.

So Evans sent Vosmik to Fredrick, Md., for a year of seasoning. That was in 1929. Vosmik led the Blue Ridge league in batting. Last year, Vosmik, barely 20, was hustled off to Terre Haute in the Three Eye. He led that league, too, rolling up a batting mark of .397.

There's just a chance this fellow knows something about hitting, at that.

OAKS RELEASE WADE
OAKLAND, May 5.—(INS)—Charles Wade, outfielder obtained from the Beaumont team of the Texas league was released by the Oaks today.

YOUNG SHORTSTOPS
In the lineups above, some of the men have been arbitrarily shifted from their regular positions, and no attempt to form a batting order has been made. Some of the men on the second team may, during the course of the season, demonstrate greater ability than the first team choices. Thus, Marvin Owen, who is improving rapidly, is playing about equally as well as Luke Appling, of the White Sox. Each of these shortstops had only four months of professional baseball before coming to the majors.

Pitcher Tom Bridges was the first of the rookies to go nine innings this year. He gave the Browns four hits and gave prom-

Rajah, Hack In Home Run Feud, Claim

NEW YORK, May 5.—(L.N.S.)—One of the most bitter feuds in the history of baseball has developed between Rogers Hornsby, new manager of the Chicago Cubs, and "Hack" Wilson, his center fielder and 1930 home run champion, according to reports from the west.

The gossips have it that Wilson, who never liked Hornsby anyway, was so burned up when Rogers' mighty club early this season started to take the play away from him, that he went into a big snit, stepping up to the plate with a don't-care air like the winner of the booby prize at a coffee klatch.

This humor was somewhat belied today for the slugging hero of last year got a homer yesterday as the Cubs tin-canned the Reds, 13 to 1. But it was only his second four-baser of the season.

WEAK HITTING, INJURIES HURT YANK CHANCES

BY LES CONKLIN
(N.S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, May 5.—Inability to beat Washington, the same jinx that cost them second place in the American league race last season, is likely to eliminate the New York Yankees as a pennant contender this season.

The Yanks could have tied Washington for second place in 1930 by capturing nine of their 22 games with the Senators, but won only five and finished eight full games behind Walter Johnson's crew. This year the Nationals again have the Indian sign on the New Yorkers, having won all four of their starts against Joe McCarthy's men, not counting one game that resulted in a tie.

Boston Big Surprise

Only the surprising strength of the Boston Red Sox against Washington and Philadelphia has enabled the Yanks to stay as high as third place, their present position in the standing. The Boston club, by some hook or crook, has managed to win four out of seven games with the Senators and Athletics.

On April 24 the Yankees led the league, with a margin of half a game over Cleveland, the nearest contender. They started to slip the next day and since that time have won only two games.

In justice to McCarthy, however, it must be said that injuries to Ruth, Cooke and Hoag and the illness of Charley Ruffing, the club's pitching ace, have been a big handicap.

Play Gehrig in Outfield

A succession of misfortunes and the resultant shortage of material has made the team's lineup look like a Chinese laundry ticket, with Chapman, an infielder, Ruffing, a pitcher and Gehrig, a first baseman, being pressed into service in the outfield, and Ruth, an outfielder, transferred yesterday to first base so that he might favor his injured leg.

Gehrig himself has had trouble with his right leg, an injury partially responsible for his recent batting slump, the worst he has experienced in several years. Until yesterday, when "Buster" broke loose with a rash of three hits, he was batting only .232.

Weak batting on the part of Lazzeri, who is hitting .224, and Dickey, with an average of only .197, also is hurting the club. Ruth is setting the pace for his mates with a resplendent mark of .432.

SHUN 'RABBITS' SAN DIEGO AS FIRST RIVALS

Asserting that games on successive Saturdays with Long Beach and San Diego are unfair assignments for a school of 635 boys, Santa Ana high school officials today announced they would ask the Coast Preparatory league to change the 1931 football schedule adopted at Fullerton Saturday at a meeting attended by Santa Ana representatives.

The Saints drew what is known as a "suicide schedule." They are asked to open their season October 10 against Long Beach, and play San Diego the following Saturday, October 17.

Santa Ana's total enrollment is 1256. Long Beach has 3486 students. San Diego, 2748.

After Long Beach and San Diego would come Santa Ana's games with Pasadena, Glendale, Alhambra and Fullerton, with a bye interspersing the Pasadena and Glendale contests. The Saint home matches would be with San Diego, Glendale and Alhambra.

Santa Ana's objections will be taken up immediately with the proper conference authorities, according to Principal D. K. Hammond and Coach "Tex" Oliver, who anticipate no difficulty in arranging for a different schedule.

Hammond Explains

"Through some inadvertence we were not notified of the schedule meeting so, of course, we were not represented," Hammond explained. "We understand that all the business was transacted in less than half an hour, and no doubt it was quite natural that nobody noticed that Santa Ana, one of the two smallest schools in the league, was booked to play the two largest institutions on successive Saturdays."

"The Coast Preparatory league has always listened sympathetically to the problems of its smaller members, and we expect no serious difficulty in obtaining 'justice' in this instance."

Santa Ana will seek to open its schedule against a school closer to its own size than

'RUSTY' GILL AGAIN, UP ON BOOZE CHARGE

BERKELEY, May 5.—(UP)—Ruston "Rusty" Gill, University of California fullback, pleaded guilty today to charges of possessing liquor, was severely lectured by Police Judge Oliver Young Jr., and given six months' probation.

"You are making a fool of yourself during your college days," Judge Young told Gill. "I am giving you one more chance and releasing you on six months' probation to Coach Bill Ingram."

Meanwhile, Ingram announced that one more escapade and Gill would be suspended from the squad, and from other quarters came unofficial word that university authorities might take a hand to see that Gill was suspended without waiting for another offense.

He was arrested yesterday—the third time in the last year—with half a gallon of whisky in his possession.

STRANGLER' LOSES MAT TITLE ON FOUL

MONTREAL, May 5.—(INS)—Ed (Strangler) Lewis' semi-recognized wrestling championship was in doubt today, following his disqualification last night for alleged biting of Henri De Glane, of Montreal.

Five doctors testified De Glane's arm showed marks of having been bitten.

SAYS ALL CAN BE RICH WITH LOVE, PATIENCE

EL MODENA, May 5.—The Rev. Joseph G. Reece, pastor of the Friends church, was the speaker at the evening services Sunday night. The pastor said in part:

"I want to call your attention to a few verses in Revelation 2:8-11. 'And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna. The thought that is on my heart tonight is what you have told me in testimony—God is taking the cross out of our lives. At the time these words were written, Smyrna was a city about the size of Long Beach, and in this city there were about 5,000 Jews. Today there are more Christians in Smyrna than in any other Mohammedan city.'

"This city has never lost the light of Christianity. Today about one-fourth of the people believe in the Mohammedan religion. At the time this book was written the people reaped immense rewards from their sorrows and vicissitudes. Paul, on his third journey, established a church at Smyrna, and he had to pass on and leave that little church among 140,000 people of all kinds or religions. But the church grew, until at the time at which John is writing, that church received the commendation of God Himself. God looking down saw that church in the midst of wickedness; they had weeded until they were tired. God saw all they had been fighting.

"And to that church, the Lord says, 'I know thy poverty,' and then in parenthesis, He says 'but thou art rich.' He means as far as this world's goods and conveniences are concerned, they had poverty, but they had treasures, where thieves do not break through nor steal. Many times we have been worried about poverty because we did not have money like someone else, but are we rich in love and patience? Let us count our riches toward God.

"Polycarp, as he stood by a blazing pile of sticks, his funeral pyre, was bent from his age, and as he was told to blaspheme, he said, 'Eighty-six years have I served Him, and He never did me wrong.'

Hold Nomination Of Officers For Orange Rebekahs

ORANGE, May 5.—The first nomination of officers for the year was made at the regular meeting of the Ruby Rebekah lodge here last night. Three nominations are made before election is held. Installation will take place in July.

A report of the picnic held at Irvine park by Orange county Odd Fellows and their families revealed that about 400 had been present and that the affair had been a most enjoyable one.

An invitation was received from the Toroso Rebekah lodge of Santa Ana to attend a "Mother Goose" party which is to be held May 27 by that organization.

Cards were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served by Miss Elizabeth Kroner, Mrs. Myra Prevett, Mrs. Clara Harris and Mrs. Rebecca Peterkin.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF COUPLE CELEBRATED

ORANGE, May 5.—The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Polley, of 325 West Palmyra street, was the occasion of a dinner Sunday when their niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Hale R. Weaver, of Los Angeles, took them out to dine. Mr. and Mrs. John W. Moore presented the couple with an anniversary wedding cake. Telegrams of congratulation were received from Mrs. Polley's sister, Mrs. Elida Harris, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Ethel Loefler, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Adams, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Adams, of Puente.

Mr. and Mrs. Polley came to Orange when they were first married, settling on a ranch on East Palmyra street, where they lived until moving to their present home a few years ago.

GAY MAY DAY PARTY HELD BY WOMAN'S CLUB

ORANGE, May 5.—Early summer was accorded a delightful welcome yesterday, when the Orange Women's club held a May party at the clubhouse. The clubrooms were gay with baskets and vases of flowers, golden daisies and deep blue larkspur predominating in the blossoms chosen. Guests were received in the lobby and later were seated at quartet tables in the clubroom when luncheon was served at 1 o'clock.

A homelike atmosphere was imparted by the use of oriental rugs of softly blending colors, floor lamps, davenport and deeply cushioned chairs. Tables were centered with miniature May poles with vari-colored streamers. The colorful effect was furthered by squares of vividly colored crepe paper attached to corners of the tables.

Mrs. C. G. Bonebrake headed the committee on arrangements and assisting her were Mrs. Jess Cox, Mrs. C. W. Coffey and Mrs. Henry Campbell, while the members of the ways and means committee planned the delectable three-course luncheon, served more than 200 clubwomen and guests.

Each of the three courses was served by those seated at the tables, the tables being cleared in the same way. After the first game guests were provided with three pins and were asked to make a spring hat of the square of crepe paper nearest her at the corner of her table.

The result of the amateur millinery work was in many cases most artistic. Smart toques vied with broad-brimmed picture hats and even quaint poke bonnets in favor. A grand march was made in order that the most natural and beautiful hat might be selected. The first prize was awarded to Mrs. J. U. Vlau, who had fashioned a peony-red chapeau to match her frock. The second prize went to Mrs. Roy Howell, whose hat was a leaf green and the prize for the most comical hat went to Mrs. John Hirst. Judges were Miss Sue Scarritt, Mrs. W. O. Nuckolls and Miss Emma Corson.

Guests were introduced by members during the course of the luncheon.

PRICE OF WATER DROPS $1 PER HOUR

ORANGE, May 5.—The price of water dropped here $1 an hour, according to an announcement made yesterday by O. E. Mansur, secretary of the S. A. V. I. company.

Irrigation water has been priced at $1.60 recently and yesterday morning a drop was made to 60 cents an hour. The decrease in price was made possible by the late April rains which made irrigating unnecessary.

The new low price is to be effective until all of the water is in use.

THIS IS OF INTEREST TO EVERY BUYER OF AUTO TIRES

The Independent Locally Owned Stores sell auto and truck tires for prices that are just as low as the prices offered by chain stores and mail order houses

Before you buy let us prove this statement

Independent locally owned stores also have experienced help and equipment to vulcanize and completely service tires, something not obtainable to such an extent and in such a wide variety of service performed in "over-the-counter," or mail order purchasing.

Buying of independent locally owned stores gives you the utmost in value for your money, and also helps to promote home enterprise. Santa Ana independent tire store owners pay thousands of dollars a year in taxes and rents in Santa Ana, employ all Santa Ana help, have thousands of dollars invested in real estate, equipment and stock, and contribute freely to all public projects, do all possible to promote the best interests of their own home town—Santa Ana and its people, support Santa Ana churches and schools and are heart and soul Santa Ana—first, last and always.

Independent locally owned tire stores do not ask for favors, but as Santa Anans they want to remind their fellow citizens that money spent at home, with home people, keeps circulating in the city, but money spent for tires from mail order houses and chain stores leaves Santa Ana forever.

As long as we can give you prices as low and service that is better than that of our "headquarters in some big city competitors," why not favor and help support the home town enterprise?

When asked what kind of tires you use, isn't it always a satisfaction to be able to give the name of a Standard Brand Tire that is sold by an independent locally owned store? Don't you feel better—don't your friends more highly regard your civic spirit when they know you support locally owned enterprises? Surely you do not want to let your money go away from home when you can do as well or better, by buying tires of Santa Anans.

Any of the independent, locally owned tire stores listed below will be glad to take up your tire problem with you.

GOLDEN DAWN

INSTALMENT 26

When the cablegram sent to Penelope Gatlin had been delivered for at least three days, Dan McNamara telephoned Lanny to ask if the girl had answered. Upon being told she had not, he was so cast down that Lanny felt sorry for him. So, like all women who feel sorry for a man, she decided to feed him, and invited him for dinner that night. She said Stephen would be there.

"That's no inducement," McNamara rumbled, "but I'll come anyhow. Thanks."

McNamara's thought kept shutting back to Penelope Gatlin all that busy day. Finally he telephoned Flynn to report to him.

"How about that Merton case I sent up to the chief of detectives recently?" he asked when Flynn appeared. (McNamara hadn't sent the case up at all, but he knew Flynn did not know this.)

"Oh, yes," said Flynn, "I did some work on that but didn't get anywhere. I called on the Merton woman and tried to get her to identify the girl's photograph, but she wouldn't or couldn't."

"Did you get a line on the girl?"

"Sure. Traced her to an address in Paris."

"Under what name is she registered with the Paris police?"

"Chief, I can't just recall it."

"It was Penelope Gatlin, wasn't it?"

Flynn flinched a little. "I don't know."

"You're as bad as Mrs. Merton. What's the matter with you?"

"I don't know, Chief. I think we might as well drop the case."

"Very well, then, forget it. Pat. I was mildly curious, that's all." He dismissed Flynn. "By Jupiter, that fellow's getting too deep for me!" he soliloquized. And he telephoned up to the captain of detectives.

"What about that case of the lost Merton heiress?" he demanded.

"We've dropped it on Flynn's advice."

McNamara grunted and hung up. Lanny, wearing a kitchen apron, ceased cooking dinner long enough to let him in that night. Stephen had not yet arrived, so McNamara went out into the kitchen with Lanny, while he related the news regarding the common nuisance.

Lanny gazed upon him very benignly. "You're a good man, Dan. McNamara. How come you've never married?"

"If I had, my mother would have lived with us," he declared. "How come you've never been married?"

Lanny sighed. "Nobody ever asked me."

McNamara sighed gustily. "My poor mother's very old and in bad health," he said.

"A man like you should have some—fine, big, strapping, manly sons."

"How old are you, Lanny?"

"Forty-two."

"I'm forty-six myself." He sighed again. "You're a fine woman."

Lanny—devil a finer. We might manage it."

"Manage what?"

"To put up with mother for the little time she has to live. God bless her."

"I never could stand a left-handed proposal, Dan." Lanny shook her head and gazed at him solemnly.

"Then here's my right hand on it, Lanny," and he laid his great right paw in hers. "If it's sons you'd have, you old darlin', 'tis little time we have to waste."

A faint flush came to Lanny's slightly faded cheeks. "What would Stevie do?"

"It's been my observation, Lanny, that a woman without something to occupy her mind is in a poor way. You could continue to look after the doctor's office."

"You're a good theory, Dan, but it lacks one ingredient."

"Name the lack and I'll get it."

"You're not in love with me."

"The hell I'm not! You're like all the women—forever putting dogs in windows. I'm not used to passing words lightly on such a subject. Give me a yes or no answer."

"You great, lovable idiot!" Lanny yelled. Advancing swiftly upon the chief, she kissed his pompadour. "I'll risk your mother, Dan," she said softly. "All my life I've been looking for a man with a heart in his chest—and the day you first came into this office, with your big, swaggering way and your blarney and your air of owning the world, I—I wondered if you were married. I'm no longer young, Dan. I have peculiar ways and I'm bossy, too."

McNamara drew her face down and kissed it. "What a blessing I'm used to that, Lanny, and have learned to be kind to the aged. Here, quit pulling my hair, woman."

The door bell began ringing.

"What's wrong with you, Lanny?" Stephen demanded when Lanny admitted him. "I rang half a dozen times."

"Do you good to wait once in a while," she snapped back at him.

"Mac," he declared, "you have a proprietary air about you."

"And well I may," McNamara replied pertly. "I've just popped the question to Lanny and we've agreed to jump over the broomstick together."

"I've been expecting this, Dan. She hasn't been worth a canceled postage stamp to me since she met you."

"But I'm not going to leave you, Stevie darling. Oh, I couldn't leave my boy!"

Stephen held out his arms and Lanny ran into them. And then Stephen warned Dan that if he wasn't good to Lanny, he would hypnotize him, as he had hypnotized Flynn and sell him the idea he was a pet poodle, so Lanny could kick him around at will.

"You what?" McNamara yelled.

"You put the cometh on Flynn?"

"Certainly," and Stephen told him the story.

"Three hundred years ago, in Salem, Massachusetts," said Dan McNamara, "you would have been burned for witch."

The door bell rang insistently. "Now who can that be?" Lanny exploded.

Dan rolled out of the kitchen and down the hall. Then Stephen and Lanny heard the door slammed violently, there was a scuffle, and something crashed to the floor.

He came into the kitchen a moment later, leading by her handcuffed wrist none other than Penelope Gatlin. "She wouldn't kiss me first," he announced, "so I put the cuffs on her—the little vixen."

"Oh, Lanny, you darling! And Stevie, you sweetheart!" McNamara cried, and extended her manacled arms. Lanny dodged in under them and folded the girl to her breast.

"You next, Stevie," Penelope ordered, and obediently Stephen lowered his head and the looped arms came around his neck and drew his face down. "And now, Dan," the girl cooed, and turned her face upward.

McNamara laughingly uncuffed her.

"Why didn't you cable us?" Stephen demanded, a trifle severely.

"I adore surprises, that's why."

"Why did you come back?" McNamara demanded.

"The proper place to hide oneself is in the spot one is supposed to have fled from."

"Lanny, don't let them stand around staring at me and asking me questions," moaned Penelope. "I'm hungry and so tired. Can I have my same little bed tonight?"

"You can have anything and everything you want, my dear."

"I want Stephen," came the answer, faintly tired, and the girl went to him and leaned her sleek black head against his breast. "I've missed you so, Stephen."

Stephen held her close with his left arm, and his right hand came up and cautiously fingered her poor nose. "God's on our side, Lanny," he told his nurse. "Tomorrow, I want you to arrange for a room in St. Dunstan's Hospital. We'll get Boyd to operate."

"Please, Stephen, do I have to go away any more?" asked Nance. "No, not any more, my dear."

"And you'll fix my nose? I wanted to have it done in Paris, but when you sent me that cablegram I couldn't, of course. Can I have just the nose I want, Stephen?"

"Yes, little wanderer. And when that's done you shall have the kind of home you want. You've been lost in the woods, poor babe, but I'll lead you out into the loveliest sunshiny meadow imaginable."

McNamara had, throughout this scene, felt a lump in his throat. He glanced at Lanny and saw the tears of sympathy in her brave, kindly eyes, so to avert a scene he growled: "When do we eat?"

For the first time since Penelope Gatlin, alias Nance Belden, had come under his notice, Stephen Burt had a reasonable opportunity to examine the girl, when, following dinner at Lanny's house, Penelope, Lanny, Dan McNamara and Stephen retired to the drawing-room. Despite the strain of her record-breaking journey from Europe, Penelope was not so tired that she wished to retire early. She joined in the general conversation, and Stephen noticed that she seemed inclined to be argumentative, but her arguments indicated no cogent thought; frequently she employed the patois of the underworld; her language was racy and idiomatic. He noticed that her laugh was sudden, loud—the laugh of a vulgarian. She was nervous; her hands twined and intertwined continuously, she moved about the room a great deal, and finally came to rest on Stephen's knees. She looked into his eyes searchingly for a long time and then said accusingly: "You don't care for me."

"Why do you think that, Penelope?"

"Because nobody could love a girl with a nose like mine."

"Did you bring back the sketches that Parisian artist made of you?"

She bounced off his lap and hurried upstairs, to return presently with a portfolio filled with sketches. There was one crayon drawing of her as she was. A half dozen additional sketches were copies of the first, with the exception of the nose. The artist had fitted into her features a nose of his own design, and viewed in profile, some of his creations lent to the girl's face an aspect of singular beauty and sweetness.

"I like this one best," Stephen decided. "The patrician nose does you justice. Going to come over tomorrow and give you the most searching physical examination you've ever had," he decided. He drew her over to him and kissed her on the cheek, paternally. "You are a nice, sweet, lovable girl, Penelope," he assured her as if she were a little girl. "And the shape of your nose isn't taken into consideration by the sort of people whose love and approval you desire. And you can get along very well without the love and approval of any other sort. Dan and Lanny and I all love you and we want you to love us. We're your only real friends and you wouldn't do anything to hurt us, would you?"

"I'd rather die, Stephen."

"Fine. You're tired now, so suppose you run upstairs to bed, and tomorrow, when you wake up, you'll be refreshed and happy and we'll be able to discuss the making over of this poor nose. Kiss us all good-night."

Penelope dutifully obeyed, and as she was starting up the stairs Stephen said: "And don't forget to say your prayers."

She grimaced disdainfully. "You must think I'm a nut—saying my prayers. I've been prayed to death."

"By whom?"

"I don't know, but by somebody. It makes me ill."

New Santa Ana Planning Commission Appointed

WALKER NAMED PRESIDENT OF ORGANIZATION

Santa Ana's new planning commission was officially appointed last night at the meeting of the city council, its members called forward and sworn in, after which it held its first meeting, transacting the business which had accumulated during the past week.

The new commission is composed of Charles Walker, William J. Tway, Mrs. R. A. Cushman, Cliff Greenleaf and Ira Hoffman. Following the confirmation of the appointments, the group elected Walker president of the body for the period of four years, he being the only member of the old commission re-appointed with the exception of Mrs. Cushman, who is secretary and treasurer.

No secretary or treasurer was elected last night, but Mrs. Cushman acted in this capacity pro tem. Hoffman was not present last night.

The first action of the new commission was to approve the erection of a service station on the southeast corner of Washington avenue and Bristol street, there being no protests from property owners to the location. The approval was made on condition that a 10-foot setback be established.

Request for the erection of a service station at Main and Bishop streets was approved for posting, and hearings will be made next Monday night.

The old planning commission was headed by George Wells and composed of Mrs. Cushman, Charles Walker, Fred Crowl and Otto Haan.

Men's Beach Apparel Draws Fire

NEWPORT BEACH, May 5.—For ages, or ever since women began wearing clothes, somebody has been complaining about women's bathing suits. Now at last the critics are laying off the women's bathing suits and have turned their fury on the men. A complaint was received by the city council of Newport Beach in session Monday night, asking that men bathers be forced to cease wearing their "shorts" for bathing suits.

The written complaint stated that men, especially young men, were taking baths on the beach with the "shorts" as the sole garment. The council referred the matter to Chief of Police R. R. Hodgkinson.

DETAILS OF PRADO RESERVOIR COST AND SAFETY PROVISIONS SHOWN IN ENGINEER'S REPORT

Extensive borings were made at the site of the proposed Prado reservoir dam to determine sub-surface and foundation conditions, the report made by the board of engineers for a flood control and water conservation program for Orange county, shows. Safety of the dam is assured, the report declares. Study of it shows that more than half of the cost of the Prado reservoir is for purchase of reservoir lands, rights of way and relocation of roads and the railway.

In commenting on these matters the report says: "Two dam sites have been considered in connection with the construction of Prado reservoir. The lower of these, known as the Chester site, has been selected for the reason that borings indicate that there is a continuous foundation of shale of satisfactory texture and structure to provide support for an embankment dam at both abutments, and at the same time furnish a tight impervious material in which a cutoff of either the trench type or sheet piling can be founded.

"The foundation of the river channel is covered to a depth of 60 feet with sand saturated with water. The embankment type of dam is best suited to the physical conditions of the site, both as to foundation and construction. This type of dam has been in general use ever since dams have been built.

"The height of Prado dam is well within the limit of precedent, and the conservative design proposed, together with the character and capacity of appurtenant works, will result in a safe structure."

Specifications and details of construction of the dam, as given in the section of the report on that subject, showed that most of the material will be available at the site of the dam and that water from the stream itself will be used in making the hydraulic fill, without loss of any of the water. The report says:

"Conditions are suitable for the construction of an earth dam of the hydraulic fill type, using the sand of the river channel and vicinity for the fill and pumping it into the dam from floating suction dredges. For the fill upstream from the concrete diaphragm, if the channel sands are deficient in sufficient fines to insure a watertight blanket in contact with an auxiliary to the diaphragm, it can be obtained in the hill forming the north abutment.

"A sufficient water supply for this purpose is assured from natural river flow and there is an abundance of fill material within practical distance. The natural flow of the river will not be interfered with in the process of construction, as water used to transport the sand will of necessity be returned to the stream.

"The dam proposed has a maximum height of 92 feet above stream bed and has a cross section similar to that recommended by Mr. Bailey in the 1929 report, the only change being in the cutoff under the structure. A single row of reinforced concrete sheet piling is recommended in place of steel piling.

"Concrete piles of this type can be cast with jetties throughout their length for jetties and recesses in the sides for grouting the space between adjoining piles. Piles of this character, having a length equal to that required for Prado dam have been successfully used. It is believed that grouting can be accomplished with more certainty and that the probability of securing a continuous tight diaphragm is greater than with steel

To My Dear Mother On Mother's Day

BY PHYLLIS TAYLOR BYRNE

My greatest desire is to tell you Mother, while you are with me, the appreciation of you that is engraved on my heart. I could not bear to write in memory of you, but would rather give you this tribute to take with you.

Your love will be with me today—tomorrow—echoing even through eternity. You are the personification of life, with red flames in your lips and cheeks, a burnished glow to your hair and the vision in your grey eyes. There is a song in the sweetness of your smile and light caresses lingering with the touch of your white hands. The light of your body is only a reflection of your soul and of your mind. I am sure your soul has grown as straight and as fresh as a silver birch tree. I love to think of you reaching eager fingers to blue-lit skies beyond the grey clouds. I know you have not found all of the things you sought, yet you have learned, and wisdom has not hurt you. You have loved, for you have given much and asked for little in return. You have planted in the bodies of your children, pureness of thought and love of cleanliness.

To our father, you have given your understanding and the patience to find the way together. To think of you is to remember great, wide places where the winds blow free and there is white moonlight. I wish that I might kneel to you and place a silver crown upon your dark hair and if I could only find the words to tell you how I love you, the fineness and the dearness of you, I would be content. Pray God to keep you always.

I know I have not given you much but you are big enough to value this, from your daughter. Perhaps you will smile softly and cry a little. May you be very happy on this day and on ever day, Mother dear.

CITY'S GROWTH WITNESSED BY GEORGE EDGAR

George A. Edgar has announced his business retirement as of July 1, 1931. It's a long commercial cruise arrived in Santa Ana from Vallejo, Calif., to open a grocery store at 114 East Fourth street. That has been the business location ever since, a local record for continuous service, and with only seven days vacation for the proprietor.

When Edgar came to Santa Ana, its founder, William Spurgeon, had a vision of a city, but to most new comers it was illusionary. It did require an elongated imagination to picture Santa Ana as ever becoming metropolitan when it had no street paving, electric lights, street cars, water system, or other utilities essential to such a designation. That's the condition Edgar found in Santa Ana.

Most of the modern improvements date from his identification with the council beginning in 1907, when he served as president of the board. With D. H. Thomas he arranged for the Pacific Electric to build into Santa Ana from Los Angeles, the company accepting the guarantee of those two men that right of way would be secured. Edgar helped to pull Santa Ana out of the mud and onto cement pavement. He has witnessed every modern improvement and thrown the full force of his energy into every progressive development.

When Orange county was created Edgar was one of a committee of five to present the petition to the state legislature. It was an exciting contest to get a divorce from Los Angeles county, but the victory was won, and now Orange county boasts of being the most productive agricultural area in the United States.

Edgar was a director of the Orange County Title company for 11 years, member of the city council for six, and city treasurer for two years. Santa Ana as a city has unfolded before his eyes, and not only from the standpoint of a citizen but as a merchant he is entitled to credit.

His line of merchandise has never varied from the time he opened his store 48 years ago, only as it improved in its quality. Edgar's store has for years been classed as distinctive in that his imported goods gave it a reputation that attracted customers from all parts of the southland.

Edgar says he has a record for continuity in business, and points to a domestic facility of 49 years. The retirement of George Edgar from the business life of the city truly removes a commercial landmark. He expects to close his business career July 1.

PUBLIC TO AID IN SCHEDULING NIGHT CLASSES

The extent to which classes contribute to the welfare and progress of the community is the main criterion by which selection of the curriculum of the adult education department of the Santa Ana schools is to be determined, it was learned today from Mrs. Golden Weston, director of the department. Before deciding definitely on the classes to be offered next fall, Mrs. Weston has decided on a plan whereby she can secure public reaction on what courses to offer. The plan calls for sending questionnaires to 100 students who have been regular in their night school attendance and also to another group of 100 students who started in regularly but who later dropped out.

From the answers to the questionnaires Mrs. Weston hopes to discover which evening of the week and what length of term is best suited to the community wishes. She also expects to determine if prospective students would expect to receive either high school or college credits.

"Judging from the attendance records this year," the department director said, "it might be better to close at Easter vacation time. If this plan is adopted it might be possible to arrange for classes to meet more times each week during the term."

YOUNGSTERS GIVE MUSICAL PROGRAM

The Edison Highlanders, a kindergarten orchestra from the Edison school, took part in program at the Anaheim Union High school yesterday when delegations from elementary schools from all parts of the county were present for an observance of music week.

The Edison youngsters, dressed in Scotch costumes, played a selection; Cecil Knowles sang as a tiny Harry Lauder; and a group of the children danced the Highland fling. Edna Hearn, kindergarten teacher at Edison school, directed the group.

The Highlanders will participate in a program at the Julia Lathrop Junior High school in an assembly at 1:30 p. m. next Friday.

Branch Opened by Fruit Buying Firm

Meyer W. Chess, president of the Meyer W. Chess company, packers and shippers of oranges, lemons and grapefruit, announced today the opening of a Santa Ana branch at 227 South Lyon street. The firm is a cash buyer of citrus fruits, buying from large and small growers, and will be located here during the entire season.

The company is a well-known firm, having been operating in San Fernando for the past 10 years. Chess declared that they are now ready to handle any amount of citrus fruits and will send several car lots out this week.

Buyer Ready To Spend Money for Nice Fresh Bugs

Bugs! Despite the fact that to most people insects are just so much more trouble, there is someone in California who wants to buy some.

This was revealed today when a letter was received by Leo Tiede, photographer, 618 South Main street, asking where a certain brand of bugs could be bought. The writer of the letter had read an article in "Tiede" in a popular magazine, which told about the Orange county insectary near Anaheim, where insects are produced which destroy scale on citrus trees.

Scouts Are Guests At Picnic Dinner

Members of Boy Scout troop No. 29, sponsored by the American Legion post 131, were treated to a dinner Saturday evening at Irvine park, by Mrs. Fred Faber.

The afternoon was spent in playing ball and wandering about the park. Lloyd Stearns, of county scout headquarters, was made an honorary member of the troop and the Young Foresters patrol. The evening was spent playing capture the flag.

Mrs. Faber was assisted by Mrs. Ethel Durbin and Miss Eloise Bradley.

Pomona is to be the scene of a gathering of some 200 delegates of the Orange belt division Salvation Army young people, Friday night. These young men and women are training in work as Salvation Army officers and will meet with Brigadier James Dee and Adjutant Ballington Rogers, respectively in charge of the division and the young people of the Orange belt. Brigadier Dee will speak.

In the Friday night meeting, at which Commandant J. and Mrs. Charles A. Peterson, in charge of the Pomona corps, will act as hosts, there will be a discussion of the plans of the cadets and of the bi-divisional meeting in Los Angeles next Monday night, when the "chiefs" of the two divisions will hold a "how-wow."

Rogers will share leadership on that occasion with Adjutant Lloyd W. Doctor of the Los Angeles and south coast division, whose young people will attend.

Old-Fashioned Dinner Served to Observe Birthday

An old-fashioned chicken dinner with such toothsome accessories as graced the tables of several years ago was served Sunday noon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thompson, 917 West Myrtle street, in observance of Mr. Thompson's 86th birthday. Mrs. Thompson and her daughter, Mrs. A. R. Mitchell, planned the menu and acted as hostesses for the day.

Included in the group assembled were grandchildren and great-grandchildren as well. They presented the honored guest with many appropriate gifts, and during the last course of the noon-day dinner he was presented with a large birthday cake. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson have made their home in this city for fifteen years, coming here from Kansas City, Mo.

Week-end Affair Held In Celebration of Natal Day

The past week-end was an enjoyable one for Mrs. Harry Becker, whose birthday was incentive for two pleasant affairs, the first of which was a surprise party held in her home, 1411 North Flower street. An enjoyable time was held, and with the conclusion of the evening, guests served refreshments of pineapple frappe and cake.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Becker, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Tibbals, Mr. and Mrs. John Mills and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Elliott. Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Elliott entertained in their home, 1032 West First street with a little dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. Becker. Later in the evening Mrs. Elliott's mother, Mrs. Henry Winters and her nephew, Derril Reach, of Costa Mesa arrived to take part in the birthday observance.

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

The Meaning of "Growing Pains"

My day-woman was cleaning windows yesterday and as she came down off her perch I could not help but notice how crooked her legs were. Presently the conversation turned to childish ailments, and she said she had always wondered what made her legs ache so terribly when she was small. I answered her with another question:

"Did you dislike milk and eggs when you were a little girl, and did you like better to sit inside and play with your dolls than to tear around outside with other children?"

"Now, how did you come to know all that? That's exactly right, though—I just hated milk, the sight of a soft-boiled egg sizzled me, and I preferred to play dolls rather than get all hot and dirty playing outside."

Lack of sufficient Vitamin D left their stigmata mark on the bones of this poor woman. Take her lesson to yourself if you have growing children. If they complain of aches and pains don't pooh-pooh the complaint with, "Those are just growing pains." There are no such things as growing pains, and when they do occur in childhood they are the red flag of danger to bone growth, leading to more serious troubles in adult life.

This D vitamin is found in eggs, in butterfat (which children get in part in their quart of whole milk per day), in cod liver oil, and in sunshine. Calcium and phosphorus are closely linked with this vitamin in healthy bone growth, and these two mineral elements are found in quantity in eggs and milk.

TODAY'S RECIPE
Drop Cheese Biscuit

2 cups sifted flour
3 level teaspoons baking powder
1-3 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup grated cheese
1 cup sweet milk

There are some days when you are just too tired to bother about cooking and serving the regulation dinner. For those days let me suggest this meal:

Big bowl of Lettuce
Shrimp-Egg Salad
Plenty of Drop Cheese Biscuits
Butter
Orange Marmalade
Sliced Oranges or Strawberries
Tea for Adults Milk for Children

Sift the two cups of flour before measuring, add salt and baking powder, sift into the mixing bowl, and work in the butter. Fold in the grated cheese, sweeten the milk with spoonful of sugar and stir slowly into the flour until a smooth dough results.

Have the oven very hot—500 degrees don't hurt this kind of biscuits, for the quicker they set, the less chance they have to run and spread.

And the pan for cooking the drop biscuits: do you know why biscuits should be cooked in a pan with just a suspicion of sides? Because the heat strikes the biscuits, from all sides, and they raise and bake brown more quickly.

Have the cooking sheet well oiled, drop the dough in small spoonfuls, bake in a quick oven until raised and brown, then decrease the heat and finish. Fifteen minutes is the baking time.

I think you will find sufficient material here to make biscuits for four hungry people. The calories total 1675 and are largely energy makers.

Hartley Home is Scene of Pleasant Session of Bridge

A pleasant evening of bridge was shared Saturday when friends of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Hartley and son Robert gathered in their home, 818 North Bristol street. Colorful spring blossoms from the gardens of the home decorated the rooms where the progressive games were enjoyed.

With the checking of tallies it was found that Dr. P. B. Gillespie and Miss Gladys McDonald held high scores and Raymond Marsile and Mrs. Gillespie, low. At a late hour the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Those present, other than Mr. and Mrs. Hartley and their son, were Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. L. Arce, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Marsile, Mrs. P. J. Flanagan, Miss Anne Flanagan, B. W. Flanagan, and Miss Gladys McDonald.

Friday Afternoon Club Has Meeting With Mrs. Turner

Members of the Friday Afternoon club were pleasantly entertained the past week when they were guests of Mrs. O. F. Turner in her home, 2141 Greenleaf street. Luncheon was served at small tables decked with bouquets of coreopsis.

In the bridge games of the day Mrs. A. W. Sanford and Mrs. Roy Gowdy held first and second high scores. Mrs. Jesse Elliott was awarded the guest prize. Other special guests were Mrs. George Lackaye, Mrs. John J. Vernon and Mrs. R. C. Edwards.

Members present, other than the hostess, Mrs. Turner were Mesdames John Turton, A. W. Sanford, R. A. Couch, Eugene Reif, Roy Gowdy, J. F. Jacoby and George Cocking.

Surprise Dinner Given in Honor Of Birthday

One of the happy events of the week was the surprise dinner party given Sunday to honor Mrs. C. W. Raney in her home at 1013 North Main street. The affair was in observance of her birthday anniversary, and guests included about 50 relatives from various Southern California cities.

Each guest prepared a dish to contribute to the covered-dish luncheon served at noon. A feature of the desert course was a large birthday cake topped with candles, and this formed the centerpiece for the prettily appointed table.

Mrs. Raney received many lovely gifts, among which were a hand-quilted quilt and a purse of $10. A single lightning flash represents enough wasted electricity to light your home for 20 years or more.

"AND REMEMBER THAT!"

Helen Chandler, Jean Hersholt and Ramon Navarro in a scene from "Daybreak," breezy Vienna story, now playing at the Fox West Coast theater.

NOVARRO FILM WELL LIKED IN SANTA ANA

Lovers of love stories, gayly done, shading from clever comedy to the very threshold of tragedy, will undoubtedly take to their hearts "Daybreak," the new Ramon Navarro Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which opened last night at the Fox West Coast theater.

"Daybreak" presents Navarro, the always popular, as Kasda, gay, love adventuring lieutenant of a Viennese regiment before the war. Kasda has rolled back through life so debonairly that he has come to consider love as merely a game, not at all to be taken seriously. And then comes his affair with Laura, whom he saves from the attentions of Schanabel, played by the always capable Jean Hersholt. Our gay young man is suddenly caught up short. He is caught in a web of his own making. He is brought face to face with the strict traditions of his regiment governing matters of love and honor.

How he solves his situation is, of course, the plot background of this diverting piece, and it would be a shame to tell more.

'DAWN PATROL' ENDS S. A. RUN TODAY

"The Dawn Patrol," probably the greatest picture that Richard Barthelmess has made since "Tolable David," which has been showing at the Walker State theater, closes its run here today.

Never has the star, Barthelmess, given such a vivid portrayal. Never has he appeared in anything as gripping and cheerily dramatic. And this is saying a great deal coming as it does close upon the heels of such splendid offerings as "Weary River," "Drag," and "Son of the Gods."

Barthelmess has never been supported by a finer cast which includes Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Neil Hamilton, William Janney, Gardner James, Clyde Cook, Frank McHugh, Edmund Breon, James Finlayson, and smaller roles are handled by Harold Lockwood Jr., Claude Gillingwater Jr., and others.

'TRADER HORN' TO END RUN WEDNESDAY

Santa Anans who have not seen "Trader Horn," now playing at the Fox Broadway theater, have but two more opportunities. The picture closes its run tomorrow night after showing to more people here than any picture in the past year. A strange story of Africa, in which wild beasts play the most important parts, a suspense is manufactured as the picture opens that holds the audience to the very last scene. Every scene means a thrill and the audience is kept wondering just what kind of a danger the little party of white persons is to experience next and when that danger appears, it is generally entirely different from what was expected.

The story concerns a trader who starts into the jungle to find a white girl, lost to a tribe of blacks when she was a little baby and the subsequent finding of her.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY HAL COCHRAN — PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The toeman, with his precious load of ice, went trotting down the road. "You see," explained the Travel Man, "he has to hurry on. The sun is hot and it is far to where the hokey-pokeys are. If he is slow he won't arrive before the ice is gone."

"Oh, what's a hokey-pokey place?" asked Clowney, with a puzzled face. "I'm told that I'm a hokey boy, but am I hokey, too?" The Travel Man laughed loud and long and said, "I guess you got me wrong. Come quick with me and I will make the whole thing clear to you."

Then Clowney closed up like a clam. He'll never know how dumb I am, thought he, if I just keep real still and just look like I'm smart. And so the Tinies' little feet went scampering down a winding street. It wasn't long until they caught up with the toeman's cart.

And then they found old Sing Lo Chan, the Chinese hokeypokey man. The Travel Man said, "He'll be kind to you, if you're not rude. He has cold lemonade for you and lots of watermelon, too. And look at all the other drinks and funny frozen food."

"Oh, I am thirsty as can be," cried Clowney. "Let's get close and see what looks the best. I think I'll try a cooling drink of pop. I'll drink right from the bottle, too. That isn't very hard to do, I'll prove that I am clever, 'cause I will not spill a drop."

The Travel Man said, "Wait, my son. The melon will be lots more fun." And then to Sing Lo Chan he said, "Cut everyone a slice." The watermelon proved a treat. "Twas fun to watch the Tinies eat. Between his bites, wee Carpy said, "Oh, my, but this tastes nice."

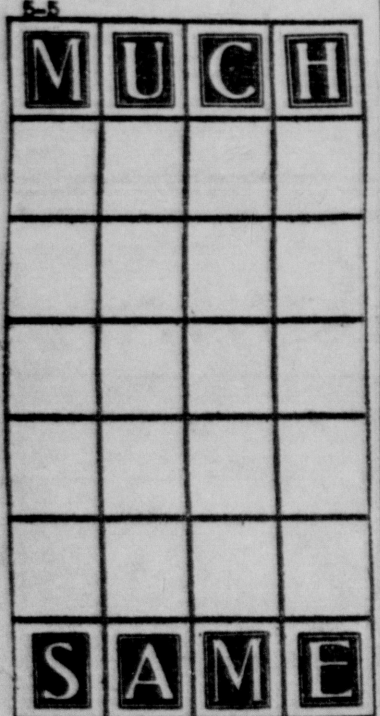

(The Tinymites play with a Chinese baby in the next story.)

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE, THE, PIE, TIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

Channel Dredging Authorized By Newport Council

CONTRACT FOR WATER SYSTEM PLANT SIGNED

NEWPORT BEACH, May 5.—The city council acted on a number of important matters at an interesting session Monday night. City Engineer R. L. Patterson was instructed to prepare plans for dredging a channel between Seventh and Eighth streets, adjacent to the city channel, thus affording more anchorage for boats. The Newport Harbor Yacht club petitioned the council for the channel work in front of the yacht club.

The contract for installing an aerating plant at the municipal water wells near the Santa Ana river mouth was let to Harry R. Friedman, of Los Angeles, on his construction bid of $33,350. Friedman was the lowest of 11 bids received by the city council for this job. The municipal water is wholesome but contains sulphur and by treating the water the sulphur odor is eliminated. Laguna Beach has a plant at its water system adjoining the water plant of Newport Beach. The plant for Newport will be similar to the Laguna plant.

The city council received a letter from the commander of the fleet stationed at San Pedro stating that a battleship would be sent to Newport for the Tournament of Lights to be held July 13. This action of the naval officials was in compliance with a request of the council and chamber of commerce. The name of the battleship will be announced later. It will carry a searchlight and be brilliantly lighted.

The city council announced that the opposition to the lighting system between Palm and Ninth streets had presented a petition with 266 signatures representing more than half the property in the district, and hence the lighting system was defeated. The finance committee reported no money available in the music and promotion fund for appropriating the $500 asked for the Fourth of July program and no funds for the $1500 to decorate six special floats wanted for the Tournament of Lights. This will not affect the Tournament of Lights as there are many boats already pledged, and the six boats to be used in a special set.

The city engineer and the city council spent some time looking over maps showing the extensive improvements to streets and alleys being planned for sections of the city where such improvements are needed.

Gene Belche life guard, took up his duties Saturday and will be on the job until the beach season closes in September. The sea water plume entertained a large crowd of visitors from inland points Saturday and Sunday. The new municipal pier affords fine fishing and is occupied by fishermen night and day. Almost every night sees a few fishermen spending the entire night angling off the pier for game fish. Halibut, yellowtail, barracuda, bonita and countless mackerels are being caught at the pier. The fishing barge three miles out is also getting a good patronage.

ANAHEIM, May 5.—A number of Anaheim sportsmen are taking advantage of the opening of the trout fishing season. A party of four, consisting of Michael Tierheimer, James Nichols, Al Schulz and Hugo Schulz, made a trip to Bear creek in the San Bernardino mountains and according to reports, had excellent luck in catching fish. Hugo Schulz caught 25 and the balance of the party made large catches. According to Schulz, the fishing in the mountain streams is rather difficult at the opening of the season and was more so because of the number of people fishing.

Gray family, of Asuza, are in the Fullerton hospital as the result of a head-on collision of their cars on the Brea canyon road Sunday evening. According to reports the El Centro residents were driving south and in attempting to negotiate the curve near the Riaz ranch home, drew sharply to the left to avoid the ditch on the right hand side. Gray, seeing the car approaching, also drew to the left. All three occupants of the Condit car were seriously injured, Jones having an artery cut in his neck which for a time threatened his death. The 20-month old son of the Gray family sustained a skull fracture, concussion of the brain and other injuries. The two other children, John, Jr. and Shirley Anne, both were cut and bruised and the mother sustained cuts about the head and shoulders and several fractured ribs. 400 CHAIRS, 50 TABLES BOUGHT BY H. B. BOARD

HUNTINGTON BEACH, May 5.—Furnishings for the new city hall card rooms were decided upon at the meeting of the city council last night. There will be 50 metal folding tables and 400 metal folding chairs. The tables and chairs are upholstered in leather and can be easily moved to a store room when the game rooms are needed for other purposes. Bids for the tables and chairs were opened at the last meeting of the council and last night the contracts were awarded. Contract for the chairs was let to the Claren Manufacturing company, Chicago, on a bid of $3.59 a chair. The contract for the tables was let to the Lyon Metal Products company, Aurora, Ill., on a bid of $8.70 a table.

The city council decided to build the recreation buildings on the municipal pier with day labor. All contract bids were rejected on motion of Councilman Stevens, seconded by Councilman King, and the work ordered done by day force. The councilmen regarded the lowest bid of approximately $20,000 as too high, or at least as involving a larger expenditure than the city wanted to make for the pier buildings, which will include a sun room, a restaurant, a bath house and a pump house. The day labor plan will enable the employment of home labor exclusively on the jobs.

After a very brief session the city council adjourned out of respect to the memory of Joseph Vavra, to meet again tonight at 3 o'clock.

SAINTS TO PROTEST 'SUICIDE SCHEDULE'

Long Beach, and meet one or the other, or preferably both Long Beach and San Diego, late in the season. Under any circumstances, however, it is quite possible that Santa Ana will flatly refuse to play the big schools in succession.

Coach Oliver feels it is unfair to ask a team of limited reserve strength to meet the two perennial champions within seven days. Furthermore, the Santa Ana-Long Beach and Santa Ana-San Diego games are both of traditional sequence, being the two oldest rivalries in Southern California, and Santa Ana feels they are still of enough interest and importance to warrant dates in the latter part of the season.

Compton, Wilson Withdraw

The 1931 schedule was adopted for a seven-team membership. As predicted by The Register six weeks ago, both Compton and Woodrow Wilson high schools announced their retirement from the league in order, it was intimated, to return to the Bay League, where they found competition more in keeping with the size of their enrollments. At that, both these schools are larger than Santa Ana and Fullerton.

Their action leaves the Coast league with the following lineup: Santa Ana, Long Beach, San Diego, Alhambra, Pasadena, Glendale and Fullerton.

The 1931 football schedule, as adopted, follows:

October 10—Santa Ana at Long Beach; Fullerton at Glendale; San Diego at Pasadena; Alhambra, bye.

October 17—San Diego at Santa Ana; Pasadena at Fullerton; Glendale at Alhambra; Long Beach, bye.

October 24—Santa Ana at Pasadena; Long Beach at Glendale; Fullerton at Alhambra; San Diego, bye.

October 31—Pasadena at Glendale; Fullerton at San Diego; Alhambra at Long Beach; Santa Ana, bye.

November 7—Glendale at Santa Ana; Pasadena at Long Beach; San Diego at Alhambra; Fullerton, bye.

November 14—Alhambra at Santa Ana; Glendale at San Diego; Long Beach at Fullerton; Pasadena, bye.

November 21—Santa Ana at Fullerton; Long Beach at San Diego; Alhambra at Pasadena; Glendale, bye.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, May 3.—(UP)—Bears interpretation of a speech delivered at Washington today by Andrew Mellon brought further selling into the stock market near the close today after the list already had given ground following a rise in early trading.

Buying gains ranging to more than two points had been replaced in the afternoon by losses of equal scope. When the Mellon speech was released at 2:30 p. m. New York time, these declines were kind. However, in the last few minutes leaders met support. The market closed lower.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, May 3.—(UP)—Wheat sold on a rising market today by the session of the Board of Trade today and closed lower. Persistent selling undermined the market and the early steady advance gave way to general selling just before noon, the market scraping the bottom of the session. Trade was not large.

While most operators viewed the dip as a temporary reaction to the dry conditions of the northwest, buyers were cautious, corn weakened with wheat and on rains in the southwest, scattered selling added prices fractionally. Oats followed the market leaders in a dull session.

At the close wheat was 1/4 to one cent lower with May down 1/4, corn was 1/2 to 3/4 higher and oats were 1/4 to 1/2 higher. Provisions were steady to weak.

PRIZE AWARDS AND READING

The announcement of the Pulitzer awards will cause a scurrying for the books which have been singled out. "Years of Grace," by Margaret Ayer Barnes was chosen as the novel published in 1930 which "best presents the whole atmosphere of American life." The prize-winning play was "Alison's House," by Susan Glaspell which was produced by Eva Le Gallienne at the Civic Repertory Theater. Be it noted that the sex devoid of genius, according to one branch of opinion, figures largely in the awards so far. The award in history went to "The Coming of the War, 1914," by Nernadotte E. Schmitt, in biography to "Charles W. Eliot," by Henry James and in verse to "Collected Poems of Robert Frost." The award for the best example of a reporter's work went to A. B. MacDonald of the staff of the Kansas City Star whose work brought about the solution of a murder over which the police of Amarilla, Texas, had admitted they were baffled.

There are those who scorn prize awards; say they are worth nothing, that some of the best work is done by people who are practically unrecognized. Those who are able to actually compare the literary works which have won the prizes with others of the same classification which invite comparison are not many. It requires a prodigious lot of reading to be capable of judging. The whole business reminds one of a scene in the "John Riddell Murder Case," where the judges of the best short stories didn't get through reading the stories until the year was well past and they had to start on the next batch and they were hopelessly behind and it seemed much easier to write a prize short story than to read them all and judge them. Some such confusion as that was presented.

There is, however, a lot of reading being done. Orange county records show that. Everett R. Perry, librarian of the Los Angeles Public Library reports that the number of books circulated has increased in proportion to increased idleness. "The year of 1930 set a new high record for book circulation in the Los Angeles Public Library," Mr. Perry stated. "There was a gain in circulation for 1929, over 1930 of 1,500,000 books."

Figures from the Census of Manufacturers in the United States reveal that the production of fiction had dropped off six million copies since the peak reached in 1927 of 36,000,000 volumes. The manufacture of books on history has tripled, however, with 3,000,000 manufactured in 1929. Books of travel have gained fifty per cent and books on philosophy and religion resulted in an eighty per cent increase in the production of books of that class in 1927 and in 1929 a normal increase.

Mussolini is reported to be an expert violinist. And yet there are some who insist he never rests his chin.

DIVORCES AND ANNIVERSARIES

The contrast between two news items in the morning papers strikes one right between the eyes. On the first page is an account of the record achieved by Reno courts in granting divorces. A decree every five minutes was the rate established yesterday, and it could have been exceeded. The contrasting news story is of the silver wedding anniversary of Lord and Lady Astor. It may be that some of those who were granted divorces in Reno yesterday will remain married the next time for twenty-five years, but people who are inclined to take marriage vows seriously, when marriage is at all tolerable, do not as a rule go about getting their divorces as they would go to a circus.

It takes a deal of "putting up" and forgiveness and sanity for almost any couple to live together twenty-five years. When any couple has been married twenty-five years, it does not mean always that they were more fortunate than those who have separated soon after finding their mates. It means in nine cases out of ten, that when they were married, they went seriously about the business of getting along together, because it seemed worth while. Really fine people, like the Astors, have the feeling when they undertake anything, whether a bit of sport, or social service or marriage, that they want to see it through to a successful finish, if at all possible. Such a feeling, which is at the backbone of training and good breeding, causes them to put forth an effort, through tolerance and forbearance and tact to bring about success. It is a surprising thing about marriage, even modern marriage, that when such an effort is put forth, it is often possible to succeed.

Those who don't even try to get along, but rush to the divorce court as soon as they become bored with seeing the same face too often, bring ignominy upon those people who try and finally fail. The latter are unhappy enough over their failure without the extra burden of being classed with those hundreds who never tried to establish a home, for whom marriage was from the first only a trial.

GRAND OPERA ON THE ROAD

The New York Grand Opera company is on the road. All our great cities east of the Mississippi are opera possessed. The newspapers are printing the stories of the operas to be sung. Lectures are expounding the musical scores to some who hardly know "Yankee Doodle" from Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever." Everybody who can scrape up the money is talking opera, which all respect and few enjoy. And those who cannot raise the money feel that they are not of the elite. Of course, there will be the usually fine display of clothing by the ladies in the boxes; and the morning paper after the first night will give five or six columns to describing the color and style of Mrs. Jewell Goldie, and the fashionable guests of Mr. Senator, and so on. That seems to have become a very essential part of Grand Opera when it comes to town.

We are opera possessed. But we are yet a long way from being opera minded. There is some difference between attending a first night opera in Chicago and a similar performance in Dresden, and Berlin, and Vienna. There one finds the common people, as well as the elite. There opera is not a society event. It is high grade entertainment for all the people. Their singers are not so highly paid. They may not have the finesse. But anyone who has attended an opera performance in any of these cities feels that something fine has been put over, and that it has been highly appreciated. It may be that our people will some day come to appreciate opera more than they now do; but it will not be until the humblest lover of music will find it possible to raise the price to patronize grand opera.

Grand opera has to be subsidized. Until it is, it will continue to be like golf in our great cities, something to be enjoyed only by the favored few. It is a great pity that many who would appreciate greatly an operatic performance are denied the opportunity. We hope the time will come when it will be within the reach of everyone who enjoys high-grade music.

Speaking of White Elephants

Christian Science Monitor

Prince Svasti, accompanying King Prajadhipok of Siam on the latter's visit to the United States, has shattered not merely a fond illusion but a favorite figure of speech by his declaration shortly after landing on American soil that white elephants are not white. According to one account, he actually dubbed these sacred beasts as piebald—yes, just piebald.

Who could make a metaphor of a piebald elephant? Perhaps he has been misquoted; maybe the black and white are not kept separate but are mixed to a uniform shade of gray. Does not the ancient saw which tells how the "ten sons of Meaknatak went from Inculo to Pinculo to marry the ten daughters of Stragilo" end up with "two gray elephants and my lady's lap-dog"? Let it be "gray" elephants henceforward which denote "useless incumbrances."

"Gray" elephants of the metaphorical as well as the four-legged kind are to be found in Siam. It is recorded, for instance, that one of the present monarch's forbears when he visited the International Exhibition at Paris in 1889 purchased with huge delight and at great expense the most costly article exhibited—a small aluminum trinket for his watch chain. Though somewhat less unwieldy than the average wh—gray elephant, the march of events has certainly turned this treasure not only into a useless incumbrance but a valueless one as well. But in these days, aluminum had not come into its own. Though the commonest metal on earth, it was rarer than radium is today. It was more elusive than any live gray elephant. Now it has been taken to perform an astonishing number of tricks for mankind.

Exactly the reverse experience happened in Russia. That country is and was the largest producer of platinum. But for a number of years the platinum was regarded as one of the grays of elephantine incumbrances. It was as much despised as aluminum was prized. The Russians tried to ship their platinum to Spain to make counterfeit "gold" doubloons by coating it with a thin veneer of the (then) far more precious yellow metal. Next, they tried to use it at home for coining rubles, but soon gave this up, too. They even made stovepipes of it, but nobody wanted them. The Tsar, too, looked on his platinum tea-service as a white (alias gray) elephant. Suddenly the situation changed. Platinum was a gray (alias white) elephant no longer. It was not even piebald. It became one of the world's most valuable metals.

So one comes back once more to Prince Svasti of Siam. Does he realize that in shattering the legend of the white elephant he has delivered a serious blow at American baseball? Will the Philadelphia Athletics have to discard their famous badge? Has the change of hue been responsible for the facile descent of the world's champions to a lower level in the American League? If so, perhaps the Siamese monarch will see his way to doing something about it.

Gardens and Homes and Flowers For Everybody

Riverside Enterprise

It is reported that department stores find shrubs, flower seeds and gardening paraphernalia about their most popular line of merchandise this spring. When they can't draw a crowd for bargains in the shrub counters. An observer of business trends says that this gardening enthusiasm has been growing during the past five years and has about reached a record peak now.

Vegetable gardens aren't at all popular, but everybody with an available plot of ground sets out shrubbery, trees and perennial flowers. New garden magazines with national circulation have been launched in recent years and are gobbled up by enthusiastic readers. There are garden clubs in many communities, prize garden contests, and other activities which not only stimulate interest in gardening but reveal the strength of such an interest already in existence.

What's the cause? Is it one of the uses to which people are putting their increased leisure? Has it followed the thrills travelers have experienced at sight of gardens in England and other foreign lands? Whatever the impetus behind the garden movement, the effect is welcome. A land of homes certainly should be a land of gardens.

Hobson's Choice!

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

AT LAST

The government has set out to curb racketeering by making those engaged in it pay their income taxes.

I long have thought that racketeers
Who fight in streets and lanes and hallways
Would go their wrangling way for years—
Perhaps continue brawling always.
I've watched bold cordons of police
Endeavor valiantly to curb them
And reinstate the rule of peace—
But rarely did the cops disturb them.
They merely went upon their way
And shot each other night and day.

In certain cities martial law
Has been invoked to break their power,
But neither were they held in awe
Nor terrified a single hour.
So long they've ruled by right of "rod,"
So freely piled their rough vocations
That only those beneath the sod
Have found the way to reformation.
When failed, these stern assertive men
Break out and start to shoot again.

But Uncle Sam, whose iron will
Is one that swerves not or relaxes,
When questing money for his till—
To wit, in gathering income taxes—
Has bade these gentry come across
With certain sums of money due him
Without excuse or apple sauce
And they—I feel—will hand it to him.
And that, inside a few brief years
Will finish Messrs. Racketeers.

Mainly a Matter of Money

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

The cause of this depression, we are told every day, is general overproduction.

Very well; but what is general overproduction? Plainly enough, general overproduction is nothing but general underconsumption. In other words, the cause of this depression is the turning out of more goods, considered as a whole, than people consume.

For such a grievous malady, there are only two conceivable remedies: one is to produce less; the other is to consume more. But to produce less is to acknowledge defeat. To produce less is to declare that we cannot create as much wealth as we are perfectly able and willing to create—as much as suffering millions eagerly desire—solely because we don't know how to distribute so much wealth.

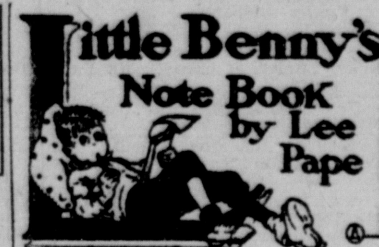

By producing less—by keeping production DOWN to demand—we can stabilize poverty.

But to stabilize prosperity we must tackle the problem the other way round; we must keep demand UP to production. In other words, we must increase consumption.

To do that, we must increase the buying power of wages. Wages come solely from private industry and public industry. What one fails to supply, the other MUST supply, or underconsumption and unemployment become chronic diseases.

That is inexcusable, because money is an invention of man, and wholly subject to his control. Unemployment results mainly from underconsumption, and in turn causes underconsumption. It is mainly a matter of money. It will be solved. Either it will be solved under the existing capitalistic system, or it will be solved under some other system. Those in control of the existing system have their choice.

Last night pop was smoking and thinking and ma was imbrodering imbrodering and I was waiting to be sent to bed, and all of a sudden it started to rain like anything and bang against the windows and thunder like everything, ma saying, O my, just listen to that, O goodness izent that awful.

Her being afraid of thunder and lightning, and pop sed, Now come, come, you know there's nothing to be afraid of, arent you ashamed of yourself? and ma sed, No Im not, just for that very reason, because just as you say, I know there's absolutely nothing to be afraid of, so Im not ashamed of being a little afraid when I realize at the same time there's nothing to be afraid of. If I really thawt there was any danger, then there would be something to be ashamed of, she sed.

Thats logic, but I must confess I dont quite see it, pop sed. Wich just then there was a farsee bang of thunder sounding like a war, and a farsee string of lightning, and the lites went out and ma screeched a screech and pop sed, Keep calm now, keep calm, youve been in the dark before, havent you?

No, not with all the lites out like this, O my goodness if it thunders now I dont know what Ill do, ma sed.

G, what if a hunk of lightning should strike the house rite now, I sed, and ma sed, You crazy thing, such a remark to make at such a time, Im just going to give you a good slap for that this very second in this very dark.

Wich I could hear her running to do, and she tripped over a chair and there was another farsee bang of thunder and ma screeched a reel screech, and just then the lites went on again, only I couldnt see the scene to enjoy it on account of me being half ways upstairs by that time on my way to be of my own free will without being sent.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

A STATIONARY AMERICA

For something less than a century and a half our population has grown at a swifter rate than any other population on the globe. Our birth rate has been generous.

Immigration has inflated our census from decade to decade.

From 1790 to 1930—a stretch of 140 years—our population grew from 3,900,000 to 122,775,945.

From 1790 to 1860—a run of seven decades—our population increased approximately 35 per cent every 10 years.

From 1860 to 1910—a period of 50 years—our population grew something more than 20 per cent every 10 years.

From 1910 to 1930—or two decades—our population has increased approximately 16 per cent each 10 years.

We have, it seems, reached the turn in the road of swift population growth.

It is freely predicted among the experts that the American population will have become essentially stationary by 1950.

We may, it is suggested, grow as much as 30,000,000 by 1950, but will thereafter stand relatively still.

These predictions are based upon two major factors. First, the decline in the American birth-rate.

Second, the drop—forced or otherwise—in immigration.

Here is an admirable illustration of the fact that political and economic planning calls for something more than the fire and fervor of popular movements.

A stationary America will be drastically different from the swiftly growing America in terms of which our economic life in particular has been planned.

The problem of national income will be different.

The problems of agriculture will be different.

The problem of production will be different.

The problem of distribution will be different.

The problem of employment will be different.

Every individual American whose career will run through the next 40 or 50 years must begin to reckon with the meaning of this change to a stationary population, and every leader in politics and industry must look far ahead in planning.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI
CLEAN SPEECH

I am all for clean speech. The right word in the exact place it belongs. Clean speech that says precisely what is meant. Says it pleasantly, beautifully, directly. Speech is the gesture that throws one's innermost dwelling place wide open to a curious world. Let your voice be heard and you no longer have a secret. The world knows you, places you accurately from that day.

Short words, those that have been used for so many centuries that they have become crystals polished by the stream of language that has passed over man's long trail since the first days, are best. The old-fashioned words like man, boy, mother, me, eat and sleep and swear are like old landmarks, precious to all who follow through the long tale of the years.

I have small patience with those who coin substitutes for such clear expressions as murder, stealing, loving and dying. So close is the manner of speech to the spirit of the man that the use of such terms brands him as one with something to hide, with something unpleasant to name on his conscience. The downright, forthright man names names and stands upon his word for it is the good word, and the right word.

Words seem trifling things to quarrel about until you remember their deep lying significance. In the beginning it was the Word. How often the beginnings of things are but words. Repeat the words often enough, mull them over long enough, and they become alive. They are clothed with flesh, the live. Choose words well, then, lest they create what you do not care to have live.

Nowadays slang from the streets, the places of the mistaken and the misguided, seeps into our language. Clean-faced children use terms that are mired, terms that make thoughtful people wince, as blithely as they would recite their A B C's. It is not good. I hold with the old teacher who used to warn his pupils, "Never use the word hate. It distorts the face of him who uses it. It warps his tongue and it darkens his mind."

The schools and the homes should be a bit more careful of the words the children use. Set a standard of clean language; avoid the words that come from the underworld's activities; avoid using sacred terms irreverently; avoid exaggeration and bad taste in everyday speech.

Teach a child to use the right word. When he wants to say "I am hungry," let him say so and should he inform you that "It's time for the cats," correct him. When he says "The guy is a lolla-polloza," have him translate. When he whacks his thumb and calls upon God and the malevolent angels, caution him to keep his words in proportion to the situation they express. There is something of abyssal ignorance in calling upon God, or the Devil, to soothe an irritated temper, or a smarting thumb. Either is something short of cosmic interest.

Teach a child to talk clearly, using short words, with directness and truth. Speech is the gesture with which we introduce ourselves to a gaping world. Surely it is better to appear at one's best? addressed envelope for reply.)

AISNE OFFENSIVE

On May 5, 1917, the French gained another brilliant victory on the front north of the river Aisne against the Chemins des Dames, and successfully achieved the objects they had in view. More than 4300 prisoners were taken.

Commenting on this triumph, General Sir Douglas Haig, English commander, reported: "The decisive action which it had been hoped might follow from the French offensive had not yet proved capable of realization; but the magnitude of the results actually achieved strengthened our belief in its ultimate possibility."

On the British front alone, in less than one month's fighting, we had captured over 19,500 prisoners, including over 400 officers, and had also taken 257 guns, including 98 heavy guns... and immense quantities of other war material. Our line had been advanced to a greatest depth exceeding five miles on a total front of over 20 miles, representing a gain of some 60 square miles of territory.
